

Fascists Claim 2 Big Victories; See End of War

Declare Madrid-Valencia Road Cut Near Capital
MALAGA CAPTURED
Advances of Strategic Importance to Insurgents

By the Associated Press
Fascism's offensive in Spain, mired for more than three months, marched across two fronts today—and seemingly took two long strides toward the domination of Spain.

Fascists said it was the beginning of the end.
No sooner had a scarcely-resisted seaborn army seized complete control of Malaga, second seaport of the land, than from the Madrid front came the announcement the Madrid-Valencia road had been cut, a few miles south of Madrid.

That severed the main artery of supplies for Madrid and stopped direct communication between the besieged capital and Valencia, wartime seat of socialist government. Again, it advanced the slow and difficult fascist encirclement of Madrid.

Capture of Malaga is of considerable strategic importance. It is of even greater importance for moral effect—on the troops of fascist Dictator Franco, on the men who are defending the socialist government against him, on the world powers who have helped or hindered him.

Franco Needed Victory
Franco, in his announced role of saving Spain from "bolshhevism and anarchy," had had no important victory since he lifted the 72-day siege of the Alcazar in the autumn. He needed one. He has not been able to take Madrid, through three months of trying.

A brand new military phase is opened by seizure of Malaga, which lies on the Mediterranean 65 miles east of Gibraltar. With a new seaport from which to blockade and harass his foes, with an exultant, powerful army, Franco is expected to drive his southern troops northward toward the Mediterranean shoreline against Almeria, 104 miles away, Cartagena, Murcia and Alicante.

Then he will be in position for a twin assault: his northern armies against Madrid; his southern troops against Valencia.

In the interim, if the Valencia road really is thoroughly cut—(Madrid has denied it)—Madrid should be badly weakened.

Success in such a fascist campaign, counting the fall of Madrid and Valencia, would leave Catalonia on the east Mediterranean coast unconquered by the insurgents and raise the possibility of a socialist or even a communist state in the north.

Basque Biscaya coast, on the northwest, also remains unconquered. Both regions, the Basque country and Catalonia have autonomous status.

Fascist Strategy
Franco, however, does not seem to be worrying just now about these sectors.

Since the rebellion broke out in Morocco last July 18 and spread immediately to the mainland, the main fascist strategy has been this: One army started from the southwest and pushed northward to the province of Badajoz. There, after a bloody, unavailing defense by socialist forces, the column merged with another army which had driven southward from the bay of Biscaya after conquering most of that region.

The combined forces fought eastward across central Franco's forces detoured to Toledo to lift the prolonged siege of the Alcazar by the government there.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Newark, N. J. —(AP)—Ellis Parker, (above) Burlington county detective chief, and his son, Ellis, Jr., pleaded innocent today to federal indictments in the Paul H. Wendel kidnapping and April 19 was set for their trial.

Their counsel filed a demurrer and said they would file briefs to uphold their plea against the validity of the charges by Feb. 19. Federal Judge William Clark fixed Feb. 23 for oral arguments on this move.

Arbitration Plan In Labor Measure Beaten in House

Parliamentary Move Delays Further Action Until Thursday

Madison —(AP)—The assembly rejected today an amendment to the Sigman labor disputes bill providing that a labor organization must submit grievances to an arbitration board before it could call a strike.

The amendment by Assemblyman Hinz (R), Ripon, was defeated, 66 to 29.

A parliamentary move by Assemblyman Murray (R), Milwaukee to reconsider the vote, prevented further action on the bill until Thursday.

Administration leaders, directed by Assemblyman Sigman (P), Two Rivers, who sponsored the bill, sought an immediate vote on the motion to reconsider but could not get enough support to suspend the rules.

Sigman's charge that the Republican leaders were trying to block the measure by dilatory tactics threw the assembly into bitter debate. Murray's motion to put the bill over to Thursday finally prevailed.

Budlong Bill Tabled
Assemblyman Budlong (R), Marinette, received permission to table his bill for the election of legislators and county officials on non-partisan tickets. He said he would be guided by another proposal now before the assembly which calls for a statewide referendum vote on the question.

The house refused concurrence in the resolution of Senator White (D) River Falls, proposing a conference of officials from Wisconsin and adjoining states on uniform taxation of gasoline.

New bills introduced would: Give the governor authority to proclaim the second Sunday in May as Mother's day.

Wendel Tells About Torture In Kidnaping

Chief Witness in Trial of Trio Says Life Was Threatened

BEATEN, HE CLAIMS
Forced Into Automobile at Point of Revolver, He Declares

New York —(AP)—Paul Wendel, former Trenton, N. J., lawyer, whose repudiated "confession" of the Lindbergh kidnaping delayed the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for three days, took the stand today to describe how he allegedly was forced to make the confession.

Wendel, a big-gray-haired man, with a voice that rang through Kings county court, Brooklyn, was called as the chief witness at the trial of Murray Bleefeld, Martin Schlossman and Harry Weiss, three of the men accused of kidnaping and torturing him.

Wendel said on the afternoon of Feb. 14, 1936, Bleefeld approached him and said Jimmie De Louis wanted to see him.

"I had known De Louis, a detective, in Trenton for 20 years," Wendel said.

"Weiss then approached with a drawn revolver, and I was forced into a car. Bleefeld drove it."

Wendel said he was taken to Brooklyn, handcuffed and taken to the garage at the rear of 3041 Voorhes avenue, where he was held.

"They shoved me into the cellar and strapped me, put rope around my hands and feet, and after putting out the lights," he said.

Describes Torture
On Sunday morning, Feb. 16, Wendel said, he was questioned again about the kidnaping and urged to "confess." He said when he refused one of his captors said "put up the pole." His arms were stretched over his head and his back was bent, he said.

"Then Weiss started hitting me over the back, the chest and the legs with a rubber hose," Wendel said. "I pleaded with them. They laughed and said they'd drop me in a barrel of concrete and throw it into the ocean."

"This went on for 20 minutes. Then after a rest they started again. I began screaming in pain and they finally let me down."

Wendel said the beatings were resumed the next day.

"They hit me in the back, the knees, the stomach, they put lights in my face, kicked me," Wendel continued. "My hands were skinned and swollen and the handcuffs hurt. They kept telling me to confess, but I told them I had nothing to confess."

Wendel was still on the stand when the luncheon recess was called.

Extortion Letter Writer Sought by Sheriff and Police

Platteville, Wis. —(AP)—Deputy Sheriff Frank Hell and Chief of Police John Rowe investigated today a note turned over to them by Mrs. Edward Reisen which demanded she leave $5,000 on the fair grounds under threat her husband would be kidnapped and killed.

The Reisen, who live in Platteville, are not wealthy. Reisen is a World war veteran.

Authorities declined to give out further information although it was said the note's scrawl would be compared with some writing obtained by Chief Rowe.

Relatives said Mrs. Reisen's mother was advised by a New York law firm she had inherited considerable money and was preparing to go to New York. A theory someone had information regarding the reported inheritance was advanced.

Oshkosh Loses in Court Battle for Fund of $300,000

Bucklin's Decision in Happ Estate Case Upheld By Supreme Court

Madison —(AP)—The city of Oshkosh lost a $300,000 memorial trust fund today when the state supreme court affirmed without opinion a recent decision on County Judge F. W. Bucklin in the Mary Mead Happ will case.

Judge Bucklin had refused to probate Mrs. Happ's original will, which left the money to the city for a purpose to be designed by trustees. Mrs. Happ revoked the instrument and left her estate to two heirs.

Mrs. Happ, Oshkosh widow, drew a will May 29, 1924, and added a codicil Aug. 28, 1928, which bequeathed to the city of Oshkosh a memorial trust fund of approximately $300,000.

She named Albert T. Hennig, former president of the City National bank, administrator and instructed in the will that he and four other Oshkosh business men, named by Hennig, should decide within a year after her death the purpose for which the fund should be used.

The will was revoked by Mrs. Happ Jan. 24, 1933, and F. W. Bucklin, acting county judge, refused on April 16, 1935, to admit it to probate. He ruled, despite charges that Mrs. Happ was unduly influenced, that the revocation was legal.

Mrs. Happ drew another will but it was set aside on the grounds of undue influence and the estate will be divided equally between two heirs, Bernice Mead Spoo, a niece, and Fred Stahlheber, a nephew.

The city of Oshkosh and Hennig appealed Judge Bucklin's decision.

The appointment of Dr. P. L. Heitmeyer, 38, formerly of Appleton, as chief of staff of the Anchorage hospital at Anchorage, Alaska, was announced last night by the government owned Alaska railroad.

He will succeed Dr. J. H. Romig, who retired after more than 20 years in the government service.

Many Attacks On Court Plan As Too Drastic

Congressmen Discuss Scores of Compromise Proposals

HOUSE GROUP MEETS
Program Considered at Closed Meeting of Judiciary Committee

Washington —(AP)—The house judiciary committee approved today a measure to authorize the attorney general to participate in lower court cases between private parties where a constitutional question is involved.

The bill—sponsored by Chairman Sumners (D-Texas) of the committee—embodies one of the principal proposals in President Roosevelt's broad court reorganization program.

No action was taken today on the other proposals.

Washington —(AP)—Scores of compromise proposals for federal court reorganization bobbed up today in discussions among congressmen, deluged with telegrams from the "folks back home" on the president's sweeping recommendations.

Constitutional amendments to curb the supreme court's power to declare laws unconstitutional or to limit justices' terms were prominent in these suggestions.

Most of them came from Democrats who considered too stringent Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to add six supreme court justices unless membership fell below 70.

Senators and representatives said most of their mail and telegrams opposed this recommendation. Little opposition was expressed, however, even among Republicans, to the president's suggestions for speeding up lower court procedure.

Committee Gets Plan
Mr. Roosevelt's program came up today at a closed meeting of the house judiciary committee, composed of 24 lawyers. Fourteen members declined to commit themselves in advance.

The six Republicans on the committee were ready, said Representative Guyer of Kansas, ranking minority member, to fight the program as an attempt of the chief executive to "stack" the supreme court.

One of the six, Representative Hill of Illinois, said in a statement that change in the supreme court was "unnecessary, unwarranted and dangerous to the security and liberty of the people."

Two Democratic members—Miller of Arkansas and Chandler of Tennessee—expressed doubt as to the wisdom of altering the high court, while two party colleagues—O'Brien of Michigan and Ramsay of West Virginia—endorsed the whole program.

Ambassador Repeats Nazi Salute to King

London —(AP)—German Ambassador Joachim von Ribbentrop raised his hand in the Nazi salute to King George VI again today—at the new monarch's first levee.

Ignoring the future last week over his salute, he stretched his arm straight out when he presented 18 members of his staff in the beautiful throne room at St. James' palace, but his subordinates did not follow his example.

Threats Grow in Flood Regions of England, France
Rising Rivers Drive Low-land Residents From Their Homes

London —(AP)—The worst floods in a quarter of a century were predicted today as steadily rising rivers, spurred by unceasing rains, submerged wider sections of England and France.

More heavy rain was forecast in both countries. Swollen rivers drove inhabitants from their homes in lowlands and, in some places, flood tides rose in city streets to the rooftops of dwellings.

Parts of 13 counties in southern England were flooded. Thousands of acres of farming land were inundated and large numbers of householders were forced to flee their homes along several stretches of the Thames river.

Flood waters from the Thames, a mile wide at Runnymede, near Windsor, and almost as wide at Eton, continued to spread. Eton college boys fed swans from upper windows in their school buildings.

Northern France and Normandy were hardest hit. Lille, Belgium and Hazebrouck were invaded by floods. The Seine river recorded crests eight feet above normal and rose persistently.

The situation was grave at Lille and at Arras where three factories were forced to close down. Some sections of Etain were under five feet of water. About 300 acres in the lower districts of St. Denis, Paris suburb at the junction of three overflowing rivers, were submerged to depths of six feet.

Memphis, Tenn. —(AP)—A wave of bombardment helped ponderous crisis sustain flood perils along the Mississippi today but strained levees held. The Red Cross began mapping rehabilitation plans for the valley.

Winds up to 38 miles an hour of the northwest rolled combers against the sturdy dikes but army engineers reported no major damage and, with the peaks past Memphis, reiterated belief the worst was over.

Red Cross officials' faith in this view reflected in shaping of a tentative, months-long rehabilitation program for 75,000 refugees in Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and western Kentucky.

While the fight went on in the valley, Washington surveyed the problem of floods and flood damage from all angles.

Taxi Driver Is Slugged When He Answers Cab Call

Neenah and Menasha Police Seek Unknown Assailant

The taxi cab drivers' strike at Menasha took a new turn yesterday when Ralph Ashley, Appleton road, Menasha, a driver for the Checker Cab company, was slugged by an unknown assailant while answering a call about 9 o'clock last night.

Ashley received a call, supposedly from the Neenah Water works to deliver a bottle of beer. As he stepped from the cab with the package he was met by a man, Ashley said, who slugged him over the right eye.

Ashley reported that he lost consciousness and when he recovered called the Neenah police. Menasha police also were notified and the man is being sought.

George Stiebling, manager of the cab company, said that about five pounds of sugar were poured into the gas tanks of one of his taxicabs as it was parked near the company office yesterday afternoon.

No settlement of the strike was in sight today after striking drivers picketed continually over the weekend.

Support Strikers
Continued support was voted for the strikers by the executive board of the Neenah-Menasha Trades and Labor council at a special meeting held over the weekend. The committee will send copies of a sworn affidavit of the strikers to the common councils of Neenah and Menasha, the Business Men's association, Wisconsin Public Service commission and to the Sheboygan and Manitowish Central Labor bodies where the taxi company operates lines.

Ervin Wheelock, president of the trades and labor council, said it is expected that labor groups in the latter cities will cooperate in an

City Commission Declares 'State of Emergency'

FIRM AIRS POSITION
Michigan Governor Still Hopeful of Settlement

Washington —(AP)—White House officials said today President Roosevelt had made known his position in the General Motors strike to both sides involved and to Governor Frank Murphy.

While refusing to say what that attitude was, officials told newspaper men the president talked by telephone Sunday night to Murphy, John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee for industrial organization, which embraces the United Automobile Workers, and William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors.

Flint, Mich. —(AP)—Mayor Harold E. Bradshaw, political veteran at 38, became a virtual dictator today in this strike-ravaged city of 165,000 persons.

The city commission, declaring a "state of emergency" last night, thrust full responsibility for "maintaining law and order" into Bradshaw's hands as the General Motors strike passed its forty-second day.

The mayoralty is a part-time position, under the city manager form of government in effect here, and in private life Mayor Bradshaw is employed in the sales distribution division of the Buick Motor Co., a General Motors unit.

He said, however, that his General Motors connection would "make no difference," and that he intended to be "fair to all sides."

Normally the office of mayor has only nominal power. He sits as president of the 9-member commission, which shares the municipal control with the city manager.

The action came swiftly and unexpectedly, without debate and but two dissenting votes, while tension-worn military and civil leaders watched the protracted strike peace conference between opposing leaders at Detroit.

National guard officers, with more than 3,000 guardsmen quartered in nine sections of the city, intensified their vigilance, although the city remained outwardly calm.

Word that the Detroit parley would continue through another day was welcomed in many quarters.

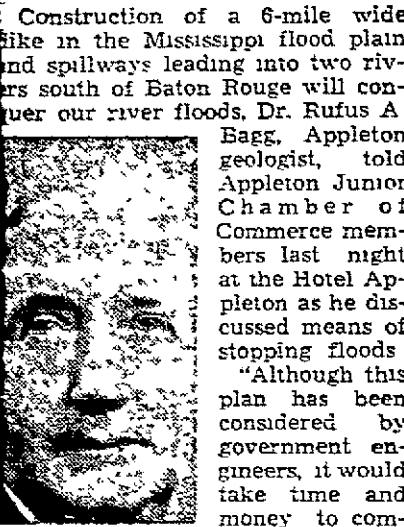

Detroit —(AP)—General Motors corporation consented today to conduct discussions to end the widespread automobile strike after indicating it saw no use in further conferences.

The almost complete silence that marked six days of conversations between representatives of the corporation and striking union members was broken last night with the issuance of a formal statement by the automobile company of its position.

Until then Governor Frank Murphy, who called the parties together for the benefit of President Roosevelt, had made the only public comments upon the proceedings. General Motors' first statement was followed a few hours later by one from John L. Lewis, director-general of the strike.

Need Great Dike To Stop Floods, Bagg Tells Jaces

Time and Money Needed To Complete Project On Mississippi

Dr. Bagg

Construction of a 6-mile wide dike in the Mississippi flood plain and spillways leading into two rivers south of Baton Rouge will cost over $200 million, Dr. Rufus Bagg, geologist, told the Appleton Chamber of Commerce members last night at the Hotel Appleton as he discussed means of stopping floods.

Although this plan has been considered by government engineers, it would take time and money to complete the project but once completed man need no longer fear Mississippi river floods. The dike would reduce the river's course by 200 miles from Cairo, Ill. to the gulf," the speaker said.

Build Spillways

Spillways leading into two rivers below Baton Rouge would be opened during periods when excess water was flowing and this would alleviate flood conditions, Dr. Bagg pointed out, but the main dike must be large and serviceable with the major levee in the flood basin.

In considering the flood of 1927, Dr. Bagg showed weather maps and said that if snow instead of rain had fallen during January, the flood would not have occurred. Over 16 inches of rain fell in the flood area in 20 days, he said.

Overflow Each Year

"Although the Ohio river is a minor tributary of the Mississippi river, the stream has overflowed its banks somewhere between Wheeling, W. Va. and Cairo every year since 1873," Dr. Bagg stated.

Records during the last 100 years show that floods have been increasing in number and intensity each year and gauges have been installed at about 1,500 river stations to measure the amount of water going into the ocean at all times, the speaker stated.

Chinese Help

"The Mississippi river, the third greatest river in the world, the worst offender. Floods occur everywhere and Chinese, knowing the distress caused by floods, have donated money to America this year to aid flood relief," he said.

Man already has attempted to stop floods by building levees to change the course of the stream and by constructing large dikes, but this has not been sufficient as clay deposits in the river each year cause the river to rise higher, Dr. Bagg remarked.

Reservoirs will not solve the question, because when a swollen river starts on a rampage, the reservoir would be filled in a short time, he stated. Rivers when harnessed aid human progress but cause vast damage when they become out of control and flood valuable acres of land, he said.

Milwaukee County Loses Suit, Wins Another in Court

Must Provide Hospital For Care of Contagious Diseases

Madison—(P)—The state supreme court ruled today that Milwaukee county will have to provide a hospital for the care of contagious diseases under an act passed by the 1935 legislature.

The high court unanimously upheld the power of the legislature to enact a law in the interest of the public health even though the act at this time applies to a single county.

The decision was handed down in one of two cases affecting Milwaukee county's finances. The county lost its appeal against the hospitalization law, but was victorious in a suit to set aside another law which required it to make monthly settlements with cities and villages on the collection of delinquent taxes.

Both laws were enacted by the last legislature and applied only to Milwaukee county. Virtually the same defense was raised in each case—that the acts were discriminatory and unconstitutional.

The county, at present, has no contagious hospital, but may enter into negotiations with the city of Milwaukee to provide one. County officials who attended the court session said the county may take over South View hospital.

Individual Situation

The supreme court said that control of contagious diseases in Milwaukee county presents a situation different from that in any other county of the state. It said that 50 per cent of the industrial workers of the state reside there and that it would be impracticable because of the concentrated population for individual municipalities to provide hospitalization.

The opinion said that if any other county grows to the same size of Milwaukee county, it automatically would come under the law.

In upsetting a circuit court ruling requiring the county to make monthly settlements of tax delinquency collections the high court held that a different situation prevails. No other county is required to make such settlements with its municipalities.

The law, the court said, is illegal because it could affect no other county even if it were the size of Milwaukee. The reason for this, the court held, is that the city of Milwaukee operates under a special charter to collect its own taxes, a privilege which no other city has, and therefore is entirely independent of the county on tax collections.

Award Denied in Mates' Death in Workhouse

Madison—(P)—Mrs. Lunnea Morrison, 47, lost in the supreme court today her attempt to obtain $16,450 from Douglas county for the death of her husband Andrew Morrison in the county workhouse four years ago. She claimed he had been mistreated.

The court affirmed a ruling of Judge Archibald McKay, who upheld a county contention it was not liable, and dismissed Mrs. Morrison's suit.

In a decision written by Justice Fritz the high court said the maintenance and conduct of the workhouse "including the maintenance of order and discipline therein are governmental functions" and in such cases the county is not accountable for negligence of an officer or agent in the discharge of his duties.

"The depression should have taught us the folly of too much credit," he said. "During the depression days the battle cry was volume, but volume without profit leads to ruin. Credit in itself is a good thing. It has raised the standard of living in America to a point where other nations are jealous and is a means of steady income. It amounts to three times as much as cash sales, but it must be carefully watched to keep loss through poor accounts at a minimum."

Important Part

Erwin Kant, credit manager of the Boston stores, Milwaukee, said that the days when credit was regarded as a sideline of business were over and that the credit department must be regarded as an important part of a business. For a personnel of a credit department should be chosen for appearance and according to qualifications for the job. Each should be trained in credit work and to help promote sales, he said.

Another important factor which should not be overlooked by the credit department is legislation. The state organization of credit bureaus has been active in opposing laws detrimental to credit and each bureau must do its part in the work, he said.

Paulus, general chairman of the 1937 convention which will be held April 12 and 13 at Milwaukee, outlined the convention program. Problems of vital interest to every businessman and merchant, regardless of what his line is, will be discussed at the 2-day meeting, he said in urging everyone to attend.

"There always is some loss through the extension of credit," he said. "But much of this loss can be turned into profit through the proper functioning of a credit bureau."

Proper functioning, he pointed out, would be the securing information on credit applicants in advance, cooperation between the credit departments of business places belonging to the credit bureau and being on guard against over-extension of credit.

Warn Merchants Against Granting Too Much Credit

Present Tendency Is Towards Over-Extension, Business Men Told

That credit is an integral part of a business which should be carefully studied to avoid the tendency towards over-extension was the consensus of the talks given at the Fox river valley credit meeting held at the Rainbow Gardens last night. About 160 persons attended the meeting sponsored by the Appleton Credit bureau.

"The trend towards over-credit is decidedly up," Eugene Lecher, credit manager of the Boston store, Milwaukee, said in a talk on "Are We Overselling?"

The credit manager is a check on expanded credit and credit control depends upon him," Lecher explained. "Installment sales for the first nine months of 1936 greatly exceeded those for the similar period in 1935, but the actual cash sales were lower. Lending of money aggravates the credit problem rather than solves it."

In speaking of bordering cases of credit, those in which persons have made payments only after a long period of time, E. A. Paulus, Milwaukee, cautioned the merchants and business men not to rely too much on the statistical data compiled but to make exceptions in some cases after investigation.

Poor Rating

Some accounts fall under poor rating WPA minor and small income classifications, he said and pointed out that much profitable business could be derived from some of them.

"Statistics do not always reveal the entire truth," he said. "Sometimes there are good reasons for an account being slow while a study of the man picked WPA accounts have shown that the debts were paid as soon as some first class accounts."

"One of the chief functions of a credit bureau should be to educate the consumer or buyer the meaning of credit. The bureau should be able to make good business out of others who are poor applicants by making him see the value of credit. This can be done by spreading good will."

"Credit the life-blood of business, is only confidence in the other fellow's ability and willingness to pay," Fred Krieger, credit manager of the Milwaukee Credit bureau, said in talk on "Your Credit Bureau as Part of Your Business."

That credit is an integral part of a business which should be carefully studied to avoid the tendency towards over-extension was the consensus of the talks given at the Fox river valley credit meeting held at the Rainbow Gardens last night. About 160 persons attended the meeting sponsored by the Appleton Credit bureau.

"The trend towards over-credit is decidedly up," Eugene Lecher, credit manager of the Boston store, Milwaukee, said in a talk on "Are We Overselling?"

The credit manager is a check on expanded credit and credit control depends upon him," Lecher explained. "Installment sales for the first nine months of 1936 greatly exceeded those for the similar period in 1935, but the actual cash sales were lower. Lending of money aggravates the credit problem rather than solves it."

In speaking of bordering cases of credit, those in which persons have made payments only after a long period of time, E. A. Paulus, Milwaukee, cautioned the merchants and business men not to rely too much on the statistical data compiled but to make exceptions in some cases after investigation.

"One of the chief functions of a credit bureau should be to educate the consumer or buyer the meaning of credit. The bureau should be able to make good business out of others who are poor applicants by making him see the value of credit. This can be done by spreading good will."

Dr. Frank Assails 'Pressure Groups' In National Life

Sees 'Mass Blackmail of Government' as Threat To Nation

New York—(P)—Dr. Glenn Frank, ousted president of the University of Wisconsin, declared in an address last night the growing power of "pressure groups" in national affairs is a major problem for political and economic statesmanship.

"A nation can neither achieve nor maintain enduring greatness on the basis of mass blackmail of government by pressure groups or mass bribery of pressure groups by government," he said.

Dr. Frank spoke at a meeting of the Ohio Society of New York.

"To commit government to a series of minority programs that do not mesh is not statesmanship; it is surrender," Dr. Frank continued. "A political leadership that lets every vigorous minority in the country write its own ticket is not leading; it is following."

Dr. Frank pointed to the present automobile strike directed by John L. Lewis as an example of what he called the need of responsible leadership, in labor and industry.

Criticizes Lewis

While defending industrial unionism as "a sound movement in line with historic necessity," he characterized Lewis as "a man of inordinate personal ambition. He has a capacity for ruthlessness that I cannot believe is a qualification for great civil leadership. He has the lust for power that has made dictators."

Although Dr. Frank made no reference to the politico-educational dispute which led to his departure from the University of Wisconsin, Wendell L. Wilkie, president of the society and head of the Commonwealth and Southern Power corporation, charged Frank was ousted as the result of "the poisonous, withering touch of politics."

In a speech introducing Dr. Frank, Wilkie said:

"I will not attempt to pass on the merits of the situation at the University of Wisconsin, but I may say that a meritorious cause does not need a truculent presentation. Nor does it need a packed board of regents. Nor—if you will permit me to say so—a packed court to hear it."

Earlier, in an interview, Dr. Frank endorsed President Roosevelt's proposed court reforms but suggested a constitutional amendment as "more honest, more direct."

Propose Increase In Salaries for Rural Carriers

Superintendent at Classified Stations Also Would Get Boosts

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington — Rural letter carriers and superintendents at classified post office stations will be due for salary increases in many cases if legislation reported favorably out of committee becomes law.

For rural letter carriers serving short, heavily patronized routes, Representatives Thomas Burch of Virginia is seeking extra compensation. This would be determined by the post office department, and would not increase the total salary of any carrier serving a route of 38 miles or less to more than $2,100 per year.

This measure was passed by the house in the last congress, and its early report from the committee indicates that it will be enacted.

Present Law
The present law on salaries of superintendents of classified stations provides that compensation be based on the number of employees and the annual postal receipts. Each $25,000 in receipts would be considered equal to one additional employee.

This measure, which has been introduced in the senate by Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, amends the law to give credit for substitutes, special delivery messengers, and regular employees assigned to the station for less than a full day.

A change to bring the yearly time basis of service in line with present-day conditions is also recommended by the committee.

No Change Since
No change has been made since the enactment of the 44-hour and later the 40-hour work week, the old basis of 306 days a year in allowing time credits for promotion still being used.

Walsh's bill, like the House bill, seeks to reduce that to 239 days. The committee however amended that to 254 days, pointing out that the 239-day year took into consideration the 15-day annual leave. Such leave with pay is allowed regular employees, but has not yet been provided for substitutes.

National Resources Committee Recommends Jobs

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington — Improvement of water supplies, purification of streams, and sewage disposal projects in the vicinity of Appleton are proposed on a large scale by the National Resources Committee in its recommended five billion dollar, six-year public works program.

The NRC proposes to spend $50,000 in a study of an ambitious plan to divert part of the water now flowing into the Wisconsin river to the Fox river to see if it is possible to increase the Fox's low flows for sanitary purposes in this way. The study would also include study of flow regulation, water power development, and lake level regulation.

'Deferred List'
On the "deferred list" for later construction, the NRC placed the following projects:

A $227,000 sewage disposal plant at Neenah (it was not clear whether this is suggested in addition to the $1,052,940 sewage disposal plant started last April with a $473,823 PWA grant).

Water treatment plants at Neenah, Two Rivers, Port Washington, and Cudahy, to cost a total of $498,000.

Additions and improvements to water supply systems in DePere, Oconto, and Sturtevant, to cost $207,000.

Sewage Plants
Sewage treatment plants at Berlin, Chilton, Fond du Lac, Hortonville, Kimberly, Montello, New London, North Fond du Lac, Princeton, Sturgeon Bay, and Waukegan.

A $75,000 sewage system and primary sewage-treatment plant at Omro, which is on the list for immediate construction.

The report puts the $265,000,000 Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway on the deferred list, since construction must await ratification of the treaty with Canada.

Oppose Plan to Tax Property for Social Security

Outagamie County Board Files Petition With State Legislature

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Madison — Petitions from the Outagamie and Shawano county boards were introduced in the state senate Friday by Senator Mike Mack. (Rep.), Shiocton, representing those counties.

The communication from the Outagamie county board, signed by Miles Dempsey, Victor Vane and Albert Krueger, declared that body to be "unalterably and militantly opposed to placing of the financial burden of the social security program upon the already bowed backs of the general property taxpayer." The petition requested the 1937 legislature to prevent such burdening of local tax payers.

Shawano county supervisors, in petitions from O. O. Wiegand, county clerk, asked for enactment of a law which would put the elections of county officers and members of county boards on a non-partisan basis, with elections in spring, with judicial elections. Another document expressed the board's opposition to any attempt to remove administration of county pension departments from local county boards.

Many petitions asking for non-partisan elections of county officers, and expressing opposition to removal of county board jurisdiction in county pension matters have been received by members of the state senate in the last two weeks.

The Shawano county petitions were also received by Assemblyman Paul Fuhrman. (Prog.) Bowler, who represents Shawano county in the lower house of the legislature.

Progressives of State Favor Plan On Federal Courts

Schneider 'Heartily in Accord' With President's Ideas

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington — Wisconsin Progressives are inclined to look with favor on the president's plan for reorganizing the judicial branch of the government, which fell like a bombshell in the house during long and dull debate on extending the president's power to make reciprocal trade agreements.

Representative Harry Sauthoff of Madison, a well-known Badger attorney, considers Roosevelt's recommendations "sound."

"The changes suggested are desirable, and the time to make them is now," Sauthoff declared.

The president's recommendation struck a responsive chord in Representative George J. Schneider of Appleton. He said:

"The president's message touches vital weaknesses of the federal judicial system. I approve heartily his condemnation of government by injunction."

Schneider said he believes the President has recommended "direct and effective measures for the elimination of existing inequalities and delays."

"I am certain," he declared, "that the enactment of the changes he has recommended would materially improve the present unsatisfactory judicial procedure."

Sauthoff sees particular merit in the President's declaration that "delay in any court results in injustice."

"This is absolutely correct," he declared. "Unfortunately the law's delay has too often defeated the rights of litigants too poor to start the strain of two or three years' legal fighting."

Jury Watches While Policeman Gives Pin Ball Machine Try in Courtroom

Oshkosh—A mistrial in the case in which Mrs. Marie Schultz, town of Menasha, is accused of permitting operation of a gambling device in her tavern, was called in municipal court at Oshkosh this afternoon.

Judge Henry Hughes did not announce the reason for the ruling but a defense attorney said it was made after it was discovered that a pin ball machine, used during the morning session had been tampered with during the noon hour.

Special to Post-Crescent

Oshkosh—A 12-man jury at Oshkosh spent several minutes this morning watching a policeman play a pinball machine in the courtroom.

The exhibition was a part of the trial of Mrs. Marie Schultz, operator of the Triangle Inn, town of Menasha, on a charge of permitting operation of a gambling device in her establishment.

Mrs. Schultz is one of several tavern operators who were arrested recently on similar charges in Winnebago county.

Irving Stilt, county motorcycle officer called as a state witness, identified a machine in the courtroom as the one taken from Mrs. Schultz's place. Lewis Magnusson, district attorney, then fished a nickel out of his pocket and asked Stilt to play the machine. Stilt did but didn't get anything.

On cross examination Stilt was asked if Mrs. Schultz hadn't told him the machine was brought to her place only a few minutes before it was seized. He replied that he had been told that it was brought there the same afternoon.

Plays Again

Then Mark Catlin, appearing with Franklin McDonald, for the defendant, asked Stilt to play the machine again. The play continued for several minutes, at no profit to Stilt.

At one point, the machine was out of balance, but three members of the audience responded to a request for someone that knew something about adjusting them.

Catlin, contending that if the plunger on the machine were operated properly, success became a matter of skill rather than chance, asked Stilt if he every played such a machine for pleasure. Stilt maintained that he played to win.

Testimony was to be continued this afternoon.

Negligence Divided in Shooting of Wrong Horse

Just how come his sorrel horse and not the black one with the broken leg was shot for fox food, now has become a question which Kimball Romberg, town of Mukwa farmer, probably will discuss with his wife.

The problem was the center of a 2-day municipal court action in which Romberg sued Thomas Campbell and Austin Campbell, alleged by the plaintiff to be operators of a fox farm near Hortonville and Harry Millard, New London, claimed to be their employee. At the close of the case this morning, it appeared that Romberg was just out a horse.

Romberg claimed that he negotiated with the fox farm operators for disposal of a black horse with a broken leg, left his farm for a while, and returned to find that Austin Campbell and Millard had shot the sorrel horse instead. Romberg resented that and sued for $250.

Campbell and Millard protested however that they had inquired at the Romberg house, paid $1 as the price for a horse with a broken leg, and were told by Mrs. Romberg that the sorrel horse was the one to be shot. They said they meant the horse with a bandage on one leg.

Mrs. Romberg, on the stand, indicated that she had not specifically instructed the two men to take the sorrel horse.

Judge Thomas H. Ryan, presiding in the case, first eliminated Thomas Campbell as a defendant, holding that it had not been proved that he had been negligent. Then he decided that the two remaining defendants and Mrs. Romberg, as the agent of her husband, the plaintiff, all had been negligent in the horse execution. The negligence, he held, was about six in one and a half dozen in the other.

So, Romberg had a horse.

TWO PAY $10 FINES

Harold Fraser, 29, 930 W. Franklin street, and Antoine Huber, 50, Menasha, pleaded guilty of drunkenness when they were arraigned in municipal court this morning and each was fined $10 and costs by Judge Thomas H. Ryan. Both men were arrested Monday.

That Mrs. Nancy Thomas, librarian, who has returned from a trip to Florida failed to see any of the flooded area of the Ohio river valley. She was routed west of the section when she entrained on the trip south while on the northern trip the flooded section was passed during the night.

It Is Said--

That several speakers at the Fox river valley credit meeting at the Rainbow Gardens had trouble using the loud-speaking system. One speaker kept forgetting to talk into the "mike" with the result that his voice would boom through the hall one minute while the next it would hardly be heard. Two other speakers declined to use it and depended solely on their lung-power to be heard.

Public Opinion
Alone Can Stop
Court Proposal

Unless Protests Develop
Roosevelt Plan Will Become Law

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — Unless American public opinion manifests its disapproval either by public meetings of protest, resolutions of opposition or messages and letters to members of congress, President Roosevelt's plan to "pack" the supreme court of the United States will become law within the next 90 days.

Congress may have the opportunity of appointing 12 out of the 15 justices who are to compose the new court. For a little noticed provision of the president's bill, communicated in draft form to congress, states that the number of judges shall be "permanently increased by the number appointed thereto" under the first section of the bill, the one that specifically enlarges the supreme court to 15.

The opportunity to appoint 12 justices comes about through the fact that the proposal itself would permit six additional justices because six members of the present court are above 70 years of age and have served more than ten years on the federal bench. If these six decided to retire before any new justices are nominated, the court would remain at nine, but only for a little while, namely until some new justices or the three younger ones now on the bench had served 10 years.

15-Judge Court
If, however, the present six justices above 70 do not retire before the additional justices are named, the court will promptly become a 15-judge court as a permanent thing unless congress should subsequently repeal the statute.

The reaction to this sweeping proposal to change the size of the court is as yet uncrytallized in the national capital. Republicans are hesitant to speak out because they do not want to make a partisan issue of the measure. They feel that if the supreme court proposal is to be defeated, it must be by the activity of Democrats because the latter have a two-thirds control of both houses of congress.

Many Democrats privately denounce the proposal, but they do not feel they can vote against it unless the folks back home tell them to do so. In the absence of any word as to how public opinion feels about President Roosevelt's policies, other than the November election, they are going to assume that the American people voted virtually for a dictatorship by the president and that congress must follow his wishes.

But did the many Democrats who voted for Mr. Roosevelt, believing his second term would see a turn to the right instead of the left, think they would be approving a drastic change in the supreme court and the attitude of the executive toward the highest court in the land? Only those Democrats who supported Mr. Roosevelt for reelection are privileged to speak out these days and have their influence felt, for, under our system of government, the 16,000,000 Republicans are represented in congress by a much smaller number of representatives than would speak for 30 per cent of the total vote polled in any parliamentary system.

See Great Debate
The expectation is that there will be a great debate on the matter in the senate, as it seems a foregone conclusion that the house will pass the bill by a substantial majority even though a large number say privately it is wrong. So many of the members owe their reelection, they feel, to Mr. Roosevelt that they will not oppose him without some clear word from back home to the contrary.

From a practical standpoint, of course, the president's proposal is undergoing much criticism. Attention is being called on Capitol Hill to the fact that the president's statistics about the work of the supreme court being congested were interpreted in the opposite manner by Solicitor General Reed, whose report was recently transmitted to congress by the attorney general himself. Undoubtedly this inconsistency will be mentioned a great deal when the discussion starts in the senate and house.

Whether members of the supreme court will appear to testify before either the house or senate judiciary committee is not known, though it is doubtful if the six justices who are above 70 years of age would accept the invitation. It is more likely that they will feel the matter is of a personal character insofar as it affects them and that it is more incumbent on the other members of the court—Justices Stone, Cardozo and Roberts—to offer such testimony as is sought by congress.

In Position To Know
These three justices ought to know whether their colleagues are mentally incapacitated and whether the work of the court is being slowed down because of the advanced age of the six justices. The three younger members could tell whether the older six justices are agile and intellectually powerful. As a matter of fact, every bit of evidence hereabouts supports the fact that the six justices are mentally above the level of energy for men of their age and that they are doing a better job in keeping abreast of the cases filed than any preceding membership of the supreme court.

Many lawyers in the national capital feel that Mr. Roosevelt's message was a tragic attack on six men who have given the best years of their lives to public service. They are being held up before the country as in some way mentally slow or incapable and they are in no position to talk back because supreme court justices cannot with good taste engage in a debate in the public prints or elsewhere on the merits of legislation affecting themselves.

Feeling runs high here since the president's message was delivered. What are the personal comments of members of the court is not known, but it is probably not mere speculation to suggest that they consider Mr. Roosevelt has chosen the wrong way to overturn decisions of the supreme court which he does not like.

View Of Justices
Members of the court who dissent from their colleagues have always had the greatest respect for the opinions of the others. They think these opinions are misguided and bad in interpretation of constitutional law, but they want decisions overturned by the forces of reason and persuasion in new cases or new laws rather than by the exercise of a president's political powers in congress.

It is known that justices of the court feel that their Saturday conference, in which each justice must "recite" so to speak on every case argued the previous five days, is a long and laborious task. Discussion even by nine men is held to be tedious, especially when sharply controversial matters present themselves. What then is to happen if 15 justices have to be heard each Saturday afternoon and if the many briefs and records and opinions have to be examined by each of 15 justices when petitions for review are presented?

The opinion of several lawyers who practice before the supreme court and who are familiar with court procedure is that Mr. Roosevelt has made out a very weak case for increasing the size of the supreme court, though, to be sure, his comments on the crowded conditions of the lower courts and the need for additional judges there are accepted as, in the main, praiseworthy.

DEDUCTION FOR BUSINESS

Deductions for business expenses form a large item in the return of many taxpayers and must have certain qualities to be allowed. Such deduction must be for an expenditure in connection with the maintenance and operation of the taxpayer's business or business properties; it must be an ordinary expense and it must be a necessary expense. In insisting upon the latter qualifications, the Bureau of Internal Revenue is upheld by the Board of Tax Appeals and the courts. Ordinary and necessary expenses are only those which are usual and essential in the case of similar taxpayers, "and do not include extraordinary and nonessential expenses."

Typical business expenses of a mercantile establishment are amounts paid for advertising, hire of clerks and other employees, rent, light, heat, water, stationery, stamps, telephone, property insurance, and delivery expenses.

The expenses of a manufacturing business include labor, supplies, repairs, light and heat, power, selling cost, administration, and other similar charges.

The farmer may deduct all amounts paid in the production, harvesting, and marketing of crops, including labor, cost of seed and fertilizer used, cost of minor repairs to farm buildings (other than his dwelling), and small tools used up in the course of a year or two. A taxpayer may conduct more than one business and claim the business deductions of each.

THE FEDERAL HAND IN EDUCATION

The Harrison-Fletcher bill which failed of passage in the last congress has been recently reintroduced in the effort to appropriate 100 million dollars annually to be used as prescribed by the various state legislatures in the cause of education. This sum is to be increased by 50 million dollars a year until it amounts to 300 millions and is to be distributed to the states according to the number of school-age inhabitants each state contains.

The idea is based upon the statement that some states have a concentration of wealth and should therefore provide in greater proportion for the education of the children of other states not so fortunately placed.

We don't know that there is anything either new or terrifying about federal participation in education. There are spots in this country where education would be as welcome and as helpful as rainfall in the dust bowl.

Powerful arguments can be made in favor of the underlying principle of this measure and strong objections might also be well placed against some of its features.

Education has certainly been America's torch that has lighted its way through many black nights and at the same time its protection against every sort of conceivable assault that has been made upon its priceless traditions.

It is noticeable the world over that the staidest people are those ordinarily most soundly schooled. They have their problems, and sometimes they think pretty heavy ones, but they really gain more out of life than the other inhabitants of this sphere. Ignorance is the sort of soil that every wrongdoer seeks.

The educated man reasons. Proper schooling has taught him to think. Thinking has shown him the necessity of caution. History has divulged to him the mistakes of the past and helped him shape his course to safer harbors for the future.

But the Harrison-Fletcher bill in the effort to rid itself of the possible charge of federal intervention in state affairs goes too far in its hands-off policy. Other than requiring that schools to benefit must be operated 160 days a year it makes small headway to insure the complete education of the American people. In this respect it either overlooks or avoids a plain duty.

Taking a case somewhat familiar to the country, the hillbillies in the near south many of whom grow to maturity without seeing the inside of a book and who show the result by clinging to somewhat shiftless lives with standards far below those considered ordinary in the rest of the country—what may be said for a federal measure on education that does not relieve America of this plight?

Certainly the nation would not care to be too inquisitive nor go into minute detail in the requirements demanded in order to share in the funds, but it may very well, in addition to fixing the number of days in a school year, fix also upon methods to insure a thorough schooling to every American child wherever located within the borders of our vast land.

GOOD SIGNS

A speech before the New York State Horticultural Society by a prominent farmer included this remark:

"We farmers apparently are the little white-haired boys of the government to the exclusion of all other classes except labor. But we must remember that government borrowings will have to be paid back some day unless there is to be repudiation of the national debt."

The news item stressed the fact that the statement received "thunderous applause."

Over at the Michigan State Grange meeting not long ago the program was taken up principally in offering advice to farmers to manage their own affairs without leaning on the government. Correspondents declared that these remarks "were roundly applauded."

The American farmer has two elements that make him averse to paternalism. First he has pride and second he has sense. The pride tells him not to accept alms and the sense tells him that he doesn't get anything for nothing.

THE COMEDY OF ERRORS

We call on Shakespeare, or whomsoever carries his spirit, to write for us a Russian trial, freed of course of Russian restrictions so that fact and implication may be honestly portrayed.

We find the Russian portrayed in these trials as a chronic plotter. Agreeing to kill even the head of a state is commonplace.

But the Russian plotter is assuredly one of the poorest of deliverers.

Follow the story of Arnold, one of the accused in the recent trial, and then tear your hair and appeal to high heaven for some way of trying to understand these madcap antics and wild plottings.

Arnold testified he was born in Finland 43 years ago. During his career he belonged to the Russian army, deserted it, and thereafter became "sailor, soldier, runaway and thief." He declares he fought in the American army in France, "became a Mason in Los Angeles because I wanted to get into better society, joined the Communist party in America because I wanted to get in touch with the masses, and became a Trotskyist in Russia because it looked good for Trotsky and I wanted to be aboard the bandwagon."

Arnold said it was his purpose to kill Stalinist leaders. On one occasion he was to drive the Commissar of Heavy Industries into a log at high speed but when he approached his rendezvous with death he swerved aside.

Next he was to bring death to a Soviet leader by plunging his car into a deep ditch, but something happened to his nerve and, although the ditch was there, the catastrophe was avoided.

This opera bouffe method of killing was carried all through the trial of the unlucky sixteen who were executed last summer. Bearded assassins with guns in their pockets were going to shoot Stalin at the theatre, or on the street, or at some public ceremony, but trivial things affected their temperamental natures and the crime was left uncommitted.

Are these men revolutionists or epileptics? Are they normal or neurotic? Are they sane or silly?

It does not seem possible that so many men could be gathered together who would confess to so many crimes unless there was at least a thread of truth running through the pattern, but it cannot be denied that there is much more than a thread of unreality running through the same pattern.

"Perhaps the best explanation was submitted by Eugene Lyons, reputable journalist and formerly manager for the United Press at Moscow. Mr. Lyons brought to the world the first published interview with Stalin and is as familiar with Russian conditions, whether on the surface or subterranean, as any foreign journalist that may be found.

Mr. Lyons declares that the Soviets do not put on trial for display purposes any person unless he does make a confession. Thus it will be seen that only by confessing can the accused even obtain time or respite because unless he does confess he is taken down into the cellar and shot. It is quite likely that, on the way down into the basement he will figure he has nothing to lose by confessing and at least will gain some time. Perhaps the court at a public trial may be mercifully inclined. Certainly anything is better than the basement and the gun behind his ear.

Mr. Lyons says that hundreds of Russians are quietly executed after the secret police have determined that such is justice in their particular cases. He concludes:

"The persons brought to trial are always a handful carefully selected from a larger number arrested on the same charge, just hand-picked specimens painstakingly sorted out.

"After the Soviet newspapers have announced the execution of certain culprits a condemned man whose execution was so announced may in fact be still alive as a result of a bargain or for some other reason. Since the Soviet does not deliver up the bodies of the men and women it executes the final evidence of what actually transpired is not to be found."

Mr. Lyons insists that the use of wives, children or other members of an accused person's family to extort confessions is an old Soviet custom and bears witness:

"There have been instances when the victim's children were tortured before his eyes, a more terrible ordeal for the father than any that could be inflicted on his own body."

If these trials were genuine there is something worse than madness the trouble with the Soviet mind. If they were not genuine there is still a feverish abnormality in Soviet temples.

What a marvelous thing of beauty is the dictatorship of the proletariat under which men would be brothers, greed would be abolished, kindness and consideration would mark all human transactions, and poverty, rags, squalor, crime, disease and war would all be forever abolished into the limbo of the devil.

Frank Phillips, Bartlesville, Okla., president of the Phillips Petroleum company, says indications point to the best year for the oil industry in 1937 "since the depression."

S. D. Flora, federal meteorologist, said 1936 was the driest year in Kansas in the 50 years that statewide weather records have been kept.

Souvenir hunters have chipped away two tombstones from the grave of Sam Bass, notorious outlaw, at Round Rock, Tex.

It is unlawful in Texas to possess the undried pelt of a fur-bearing animal more than 15 days after the close of the legal open season.

GENERAL Hugh (Ironpants) Johnson has dragged out the tom-toms again, this time in defense of the final move to make the president boss of everything. . . . I only heard snatches of Johnson's crack-down on those who oppose the president's plan, but there appeared to be nothing new in his technique. . . . what irked me most was the announcement that Fascist Italy and Germany are heartily applauding the proposal to pack the supreme court. . . . in those countries, the government didn't use the finesse employed by FDR to control the legislative branch of government (and there was no supreme court to worry about). . . . it simply told the boys to pack up and go home. . . . in order to please the people, the Germans at least occasionally arrange a plebiscite so that, on a sunny Sunday, the populace can go and vote. . . . since there is just one way to vote, there is no danger that the election is likely to cause an upset. . . . over here, the reformers haven't figured out a way to tell us precisely how to vote, but there must be some way to do it. . . . Tennessee has shown how to start gagging the newspapers, and although this cannot be construed as a New Deal measure, because Tennessee has been fond of suppressing the facts of life for many years, there is more New Deal activity rampant there than in any of the sixteen states your correspondent has visited. . . .

THERE ARE CIGARS LIKE THAT

Chicago

Jonah:

These twelve senators who are reported have been given $1,000 each to give testimonials for a popular cigarette, remind me of the time my uncle took the blindfold test for a five-cent cigar and failed. He said it was a horse burning up.

—Hoosier Bear-Cat.

That reminds me of the story told of a prominent singer who visited Janesville some years ago and who, at a luncheon club dinner, turned down a cigarette offered him.

"But this is the brand you endorsed," commented the cigarette-giver.

"I know it," said the singer, "but I don't smoke."

It seemed that the singer had been approached by the cigarette manufacturer to furnish a testimonial. He explained that he didn't smoke, which statement bothered the cigarette people not at all.

"For five thousand dollars you can make the perfectly true statement that these cigarettes don't hurt you, can't you?" he was asked.

So he is supposed to have done just that.

It is surprising to note that a senator's testimonial is worth but $1,000, but, after the president gets through with the senate, some of whose members seem opposed to the measure he now proposes, maybe a senator will be lucky to get $1,000 for anything he endorses.

Senator Glass will be the interesting man to watch during the coming battle. The Virginia Democrat has not been sympathetic with the New Deal, and is himself at the age at which the president has indicated is time for men in government to retire. The senator has been ribbed both politically and personally, and being a Virginian, he may not take it lying down.

NANNY'S COOKING

She makes the richest mince-meat.
And we love her pies and cakes.
Her coffee bread's the tastiest
That anybody bakes.
And who is there to duplicate
The sauerkraut Nanny makes?

The best of old-time Germany.
Its wholesome simple ways:
The laughter and the hearty songs
Of Nanny's younger days,
Are in the savory delight
Her cookery displays.

There may be chefs with modern brands
Of culinary skill,
But for delicious toothsome-ness
Our Nanny fills the bill.
Nobody leaves her lavish board
Till he has had his fill.

We love her coffee made with egg,
And every recipe
Her mother's mother handed down
From far-off Germany.
But best of all we love her fine
Warm hospitality!

The fortieth annual meeting of the Outagamie Pioneer association will be held Feb. 22 at Harmon hall. The business session will be held in the morning, a picnic dinner will be served at noon and a program will be held during the afternoon with the annual address to be delivered by Orlando S. Clark.

Personal Health Talks

DO SWEETS HARM THE TEETH?

The natural souring of milk is a kind of fermentation brought about by the action of lactic bacilli, normally present in pure fresh milk, on the lactose or milk sugar which is converted by this fermentation into lactic acid. Such lactic fermentation is a wholesome and healthful state and soured milk or buttermilk (soured milk from which the fat has been removed) is universally regarded as a wholesome or healthful beverage or food. In recent years various artificially fermented milk beverages have had their vogue—notably Bulgarian sour milk, popularized by the late Metchnikoff, and Acidophilus milk. Bulgarian sour milk, as Metchnikoff suggested, was made by first skimming off the cream, then boiling the skim milk for five minutes, cooling it about body temperature, then adding to it some culture of a special strain of lactic bacillus which Metchnikoff found in the alimentary tract of many Bulgarians who attained remarkable longevity and retained remarkable vitality, which Metchnikoff ascribed to the use of fermented milk beverages in that country. Acidophilus milk is usually made by dairies in similar fashion, except that a different strain of lactic bacillus culture is used, one which bacteriologists in this country consider the predominating and most desirable strain, called Bacillus acidophilus.

I believe plain old sour milk or genuine buttermilk if you can find it, is as healthful and as delightful a beverage as any scientific or hifalutin substitute you can drink.

If you are fond of sour milk or buttermilk or one of the scientific fermented milk beverages, fine and dandy. Wade right in and here's health to you. If you prefer nice fresh milk, as I do, very good. Eddy. You get all the makings just the same. For you imbibe the milk sugar (lactose) and the lactic bacilli in the sweet milk, and the fermentation will occur in your alimentary tract where it is most beneficial.

The chief reason why lactic fermentation is desirable in the alimentary tract is that the lactic acid produced by the action of lactic bacilli on sugar or starch of any kind renders the environment unfavorable for the multiplication and activity of germs of putrefaction or possibly disease germs.

We had discarded the notion that sugars and candies and sweets were injurious to the teeth and we were sailing along happily sucking a lollipop when Jerusalem—Russell W. Bunting, D. D. Sc., Professor of Oral Pathology School of Dentistry, University of Michigan, swooped past taking all the wind out of our sails with his vigorous contention that Bacillus acidophilus is the active causative agent of dental caries. Yes, the very same strain of lactic acid bacilli that predominates in the alimentary canal in health, the same strain you may have taken freely in acidophilus milk. Dr. Bunting attributes the cavity formation not to any specific damage done by the Bacillus acidophilus, but to infection, but rather to the acids which these bacilli produce during fermentation, and maintains that the extent of dental caries is independent of or unrelated to mouth cleanliness, depending rather on the numbers of acidophilus bacilli present. I say the Professor took the wind out of our sails—but we still have a firm grip on our lollipop, you may rest assured.

Seen And Heard In New York

—BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Panhandling in New York is not confined to any set of nationalities, although apparently it is indulged only by members of the white and black races. I have never seen a Chinese beggar, the reason being that unemployment in China is not so great. All needy cases are promptly corrected by the various gangs. The psychological reasoning behind this is that the Chinese, feeling certain they are superior to the white and all other races, have too much pride to seek alms from occidentals.

Fay never faced a serious charge, but at regular intervals the police brought him in for observation and questioning. Eventually he became famous in a left-handed sort of way, operating his own club, the El Fay, and attracting publicity to himself until somebody finally shot him early one morning in his own club.

NOBODY WILL WIN

Editor Post-Crescent: You should be commended for the strike editorial in your February 4 issue. It at least looked upon the sit-downers as human beings and intimated that they have grievances which are entitled to consideration. Incidentally, if we could think about the "sit-down idea dispassionately wouldn't we chuckle some and give the man who originated the idea a pat on the back? The technique is new, distinctly American, and very much ahead of the rough and tumble of the old time strike.

What is the strike all about? Boiled down and apart from the collective bargaining factor, the men want more money for less work (entirely human) and relief from the speed-up of straight line production. They are perhaps justified in wanting more money and maybe did get stirred up by the extra dividends which went to the stockholders during 1936. It has not been shown what the average wage was last year but it could not have been above $1000. In 1929, the biggest year in our history, it was $1200, and only $900 in 1935. When the upper twenty executives received several millions in salaries and bonuses, it can be well imagined that a good many of the employees had incomes far below the average which at best could not be considered very high.

Right now it appears that the opposing forces are concerned about benefiting the worker at the expense of the stockholders, or vice versa. At least the surface pro and con arguments would so indicate, but an analysis of the situation would uncover such facts as would prove that both sides are shooting at the "house on the eyebrow." The number of hours put in by the workers determine the amount of their pay checks, and no one will deny that it takes less hours today to turn out an automobile than it did five years ago or even one year ago. Sixty-eight man hours today for a Chevrolet and seventy-one for a Ford. The Plymouth advertising states that three come off the assembly line every minute. 3 x 60 x 24 x 365, full load operating, means 1,576,800 Plymouths per year and we know that the Chevrolet and Ford production is greater than Plymouth.

We know that automobile production is seasonal and that the work and fill workers have many idle hours during the course of a year. We know also that the peak employment in the automobile industry was in 1923 and that the man hours per unit of production decrease daily. Further, that even the boosting of credit buying of automobiles to 60 per cent of total sales and the period for payment to twenty-four months has not and will not enable dealers to sell enough automobiles to keep the factories busy and to give full time employment to the people who are capable of functioning therein.

Whether the union or the management "wins" the strike, the general picture and future developments will not be changed, and membership in the union will not help the worker in the long run. There used to be strong glass-blower and cigar-maker unions with large memberships. Today glass-blowing and cigar-making are lost arts. Technology wrecked both, not because any one was deliberate about it but because Technology is not a respecter of persons or institutions.

When there is a lot of anything, the price becomes low. All that the workers have to sell is man-hours, and Technology makes them more plentiful each day. At that there may be a chance for the auto workers who work only a limited number of hours or not at all. They should find an industry more highly mechanized than the auto industry. A recent magazine covering the machine tool industry states that employment will make more jobs so all they need do is find an industry using more machinery. There was some full-page advertising along this line in this locality too just a short time ago.

Yours very truly,
Fred J. Leonard.

Your Birthday

"AQUARIUS"

If February 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 to 10:45 a. m., from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:45 to 8:45 a. m., from 3:45 to 7:45 p. m. and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

There will be a lot of nonsensical talk taken seriously this day, so be careful how you joke. Influences conducive to promises being broken are likely to prevail, causing most of this day's quarrels, so keep any you have made, particularly if it involves taking someone to some place. Do not ignore any social obligation, or you will find yourself in hot water. This is liable to be a poor day to depend too much on transportation facilities, which probably will be interrupted by numerous causes. If you are wise allow your self a good margin of time for unforeseen delays. This day is a good one for you not to try to regulate strangers' behavior, if you wish to keep from being insulted. Try not to express yourself forcibly in any public place, for this will be another source of trouble. Married and engaged couples, as well as those expecting to become betrothed, will show good judgment if they do not oppose, without ample justification, any suggestions offered for the day's entertainment.

If a woman and February 10 is your natal day, you perhaps are inclined to be somewhat of a tease. Your ready tongue and good humor, should make you much sought after. The chances are you will have something done for you, unexpectedly, that will bring a great deal of happiness in to your life. You seem destined to become a leader in either social or commercial life. There is a possibility of your having conferred to you an important secret. Under no condition violate any confidence, for there is danger in your talking too freely about other people's affairs. As a hostess, business manager, writer, advertising, insurance, real estate agent or trained nurse your future ought to be very bright. Your matrimonial ambitions in all likelihood will be realized.

The child born on February 10 usually, from the time it enters school, has a happy faculty of making itself popular. Its personality, rather than its actual efforts, may be responsible for its future success.

GAMES LAST NIGHT

Old Line Life (Green Bay) 47, Pantry Lunch 13.

Kaukauna—After trailing 20-8 at the half, the Goldin Metals turned on the heat in the last half of their game with the Gustman Chevrolets last night but they weren't quite hot enough and lost 32-28.

Sager made seven sparkling baskets for the winners to take scoring honors with fourteen points, while Kilgas, C. Berg, and Eiting each contributed six points for the Goldin Metal five.

A fast-breaking Old Line Life team from Green Bay, playing at top speed, won as it pleased from Pantry Lunch 47-13, holding the Kaukauna five down to three points in the last half and allowing them only five field goals in the entire game, the second of the evening.

Ysebaert, Old Line Life forward, once a member of the University of Wisconsin squad, and Bassett, the center, each slipped in eight field goals for 16 points apiece. Farwell's two baskets topped individual scoring for the Pantry Lunch.

In the first game, Gustman Chevrolets started a steady scoring drive early in the first quarter and appeared to be on their way to an easy victory. With Sager and C. Koch banging in baskets, they led 12-3 at the end of the first quarter and shoved their lead to 20-8 at the half.

Baskets by Kilgas and Eiting started the Goldin Metals on their rally late in the third quarter and they hauled up within four points of the Chevrolets, 26-22. Eiting and C. Berg kept the Metals going in the last frame, but the Chevrolets, with Sager getting his last goal supported by baskets from C. Koch and Derrus, were able to retain their lead.

Bay Wins Easily
A well-knit team, obviously accustomed to playing together, the Old Line Life went ahead early in their game with the Pantry Lunch and steadily built up their lead, especially in the last half.

Using an effective, revolving offense in which Bassett and Ysebaert stood out, and an air-tight zone defense, the Green Bay team was never threatened and managed to wash most of the Kaukauna team scoring gestures. They were out in front 23-10 at the half.

Industrial First Aid Classes are Planned

Kaukauna—A class on industrial first aid has been added to the curriculum at the vocational school and it will meet weekly at 3:15 Friday afternoons in the first aid room of the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company.

Representatives from the Thilmany mill and from the Union Bag and Paper company met for the first time last Friday with the instructor, Leon Palmer, to organize the class and outline the course of study.

The work will extend over 10 weeks. After this class has finished its studies, Palmer, a circuit teacher, will organize groups for other courses along the same line.

PHYSICAL ED CLASS
Kaukauna—The ladies physical education class will meet at 7 o'clock in the high school gymnasium tonight. Clifford Kemp is the instructor.

Publication of Relief Clients' Names Planned In Spite of Protests

Kaukauna—Despite the objections of a large number of citizens, the list of city relief cases for January will be published in tomorrow morning's edition of the semi-weekly newspaper here.

City Clerk Lester Brenzel said yesterday that he received word from Mayor John Niesen Saturday to carry out the resolution passed by a 6-4 vote at the meeting of the common council last week which will make public the names of families, single people, widows, and widowers who receive direct aid from the city.

The list will contain 97 names. Except where only one person is being helped, the names will be those of heads of families. In one case, for example, there are three adults and seven children, a total of 10, on relief, but only the father's name will be printed.

Although only 97 names will be made public, the city is carrying a relief load of 226 adults and 116 children. For relief purposes, children are those of 12 years or under. The city paid out $2,296.62 in January to support its relief clients.

A storm of protests by telephone and in person was reported last week by Alderman Jules Mertes, chairman of the poor committee. He said that most of the people who raised objections to publishing the list are not relief clients.

Many of them said they would ask aldermen who approved the measure to reconsider. Under council rules only an alderman who voted for a resolution can request that a second vote be taken. Brenzel said yesterday that none of the six members of the council who backed the plan had indicated to him any change in the conviction that the list should be published.

KILL THAT COLD

Give It No Chance to Survive Thru the Use of Half-way Measures!

Treat a cold to kill it, not to coddle it! Many a cold lightly treated turns into something worse. Hit a cold "where it lives"—in the system! That means to take an internal treatment. Hit it with a cold medicine, not with a preparation good for all kinds of ailments. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment you want. First of all, it is a cold tablet, made expressly for colds. Second, it is internal medication and of fourfold effect. Here's what it does: First, it opens the bowels, an advisable step in the treatment of a cold. Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital step. Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack. That's the fourfold treatment a cold calls for and in Bromo Quinine you get it in the form of a single tablet. Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain. The sugar-coated are exactly the same as the regular, except that the tablets are coated with sugar for palatability. When you feel a cold coming on, don't "monkey around" with half-way measures. Go right to your druggist for a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine tablets. Start taking the tablets immediately, two every four hours. Used in time, Bromo Quinine will usually break up a cold in 24 hours and that's the speed you want.

Cage Jamboree Being Planned At School Gym

Six Games Will Feature Annual Event Wednesday Night

Kaukauna—Twelve basketball teams are grooming themselves for the parade of six games in which girls, boys, teachers, and several of the city's well-known business men will participate at the second annual high school Basketball Jamboree tomorrow night.

Superintendent James F. Cavanaugh, coach of the high school faculty team, said yesterday he was "going to get busy and see what kind of wind the boys have."

Asked what chances he thought his teachers held against the officials of the industrial basketball league, Cavanaugh said "We ought to take that bunch easily."

There was no member of the opposing team present to challenge the statement, but reliable sources said yesterday that with such men as Greenwood, Goldin, and Otte, the officials were confident of victory. One of their team is said to have used the expression "wipe the floor" in describing the offense they planned against the high school faculty. This game is at 7:30.

Although the line-ups will be ready by game time, Coach Paul Little said yesterday that he is having some trouble in finding horses for the game of horseback basketball at 9 o'clock, the last event of the program.

In this fray, high school youths of the jockey type will be perched on top the shoulders of classmates of more stalwart dimensions. Coach Little said yesterday there are plenty of riders to be had, but few steeds. Three of them, Noie, McLaughlin, and McCormick have volunteered, however, to play horsey.

Plan Tall Center

Because the original House of David team has a center of unusual height, the group of high school basketball players who have adopted that name are going to double up on two of their players in the game with the Midgets.

William Bedat will make the first layer and Tom Bauer, sitting on Bedat's shoulders, the second. A monstrous pair of pants will be fitted over both of them, extending from the bottom boy's knees to the top boy's hips. When they tire, gangling Robert Landreman will play center.

The jamboree will open at 6:15 with a game between the St. Mary and Holy Cross grade school teams.

Pegler Finds Resentment Against His Tax Proposal

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Chicago, Ill.—According to my reckoning anyone who doesn't pay his share of the cost of running the country is a parasite, and if that is an ugly word it is no more ugly than the practice of exempting from the income tax millions of public employees whose earnings are well within the zone of eligibility.

I discovered great resentment among persons drawing salaries from city, county and state at the very suggestion that they should pay the federal income tax on exactly the same basis as other people earning that same amount.

One woman, a school teacher, points out that she has sometimes paid as much as 15 per cent of her gross wages into the pension fund and seems to think of this as a tax. The fact is, of course, that this is no tax, but an unusually sound system of providing against old age. A person in private employment, earning the same amount, might also pay 15 per cent into an endowment policy or annuity subject to greater risks, but the income tax law would not regard that as deductible.

Another teacher, drawing $1,450, has waited some years for stated increases in salary which have been defaulted, however, owing to the depression, and perhaps, in part, to the overloading of the public service with deserving politicians who pay no tax, either. This income of $1,450, if the teacher is unmarried and not the head of a household, would be subject to a small tax, both federal and state, if she were privately employed.

It is unfortunate that her salary did not improve according to her expectations during the years of the great panic, but there are many people in private employment whose wages have failed to advance, but are compelled to show up down, nevertheless, with their share of the cost of citizenship.

Interpretation is Result of Case Not Involving Tax

The federal income tax specifically applies to all income from whatever source derived, and the exemptions which protect city, county and state employees in vast number is the remote result of a very fastidious interpretation of the United States constitution in cases which were not based on the income tax law at all. The decisions were given long before the income tax existed, and later were construed to exempt all members of the greatest aggregate payroll in the world, including thousands of big shot dead-heads who get from $5,000 to $25,000 a year.

Some individuals seem to have confused the case so it may be restated.

Wisconsin Feb. 4 and is now working in the soils laboratory on the campus. He will take a new position in the state soils laboratory at LaCrosse March 1 and with his wife will visit his parents here later this month.

ped to tatters to accommodate the impatience of the administration. The supreme court decisions which are held to establish this exemption to the great detriment of those who work in private but unprotected industry, also hold against taxation upon taxation. Yet the state income tax laws airily dismiss that phase of these decisions. Federal Government has More Active Conscience The states levy income tax on the money which is paid to the federal government as income tax. In other words, you pay the federal government a tax and then pay a tax on that to the state. The federal government, however, has a slightly more active conscience in the same circumstances and exempts the money paid as state income tax. There is an important inconsistency there. The case is plain, an enormous class of parasites in the public service enjoy all the benefits of government, while claiming exemption from the cost. They may be, for the most part, conscientious workers giving good service, but that is debatable, and besides the point anyway. However, everybody knows that they do include hundreds of thousands of stupid, lazy, incompetent loafers stuck away in public offices on the recommendation of local political leaders. These class are deadweight and it is the enough to ask that they pay an income tax the same proportion as the people who support them.

Old Line Life (Green Bay) 47, Pantry Lunch 13.

Kaukauna—After trailing 20-8 at the half, the Goldin Metals turned on the heat in the last half of their game with the Gustman Chevrolets last night but they weren't quite hot enough and lost 32-28.

Sager made seven sparkling baskets for the winners to take scoring honors with fourteen points, while Kilgas, C. Berg, and Eiting each contributed six points for the Goldin Metal five.

Fast-breaking Old Line Life team from Green Bay, playing at top speed, won as it pleased from Pantry Lunch 47-13, holding the Kaukauna five down to three points in the last half and allowing them only five field goals in the entire game, the second of the evening.

Ysebaert, Old Line Life forward, once a member of the University of Wisconsin squad, and Bassett, the center, each slipped in eight field goals for 16 points apiece. Farwell's two baskets topped individual scoring for the Pantry Lunch.

Start Drive

In the first game, Gustman Chevrolets started a steady scoring drive early in the first quarter and appeared to be on their way to an easy victory. With Sager and C. Koch banging in baskets, they led 12-5 at the end of the first quarter and shoved their lead to 20-8 at the half.

Baskets by Kilgas and Eiting started the Goldin Metals on their rally late in the third quarter and they hauled up within four points of the Chevrolets, 28-22. Eiting and C. Berg kept the Metals going in the last frame, but the Chevrolets, with Sager getting his last goal supported by baskets from C. Koch and Darius, were able to retain their lead.

Bay Wins Easily

A well-knit team, obviously accustomed to playing together, the Old Line Life went ahead early in their game with the Pantry Lunch and steadily built up their lead, especially in the last half.

Using an effective, revolving of fence in which Bassett and Ysebaert stood out, and an air-tight zone defense, the Green Bay team was never threatened and managed to squash most of the Kaukauna team scoring gestures. They were out in front 32-10 at the half.

Publication of Relief Clients' Names Planned In Spite of Protests

Kaukauna — Despite the objections of a large number of citizens, the list of city relief cases for January will be published in tomorrow morning's edition of the semi-weekly newspaper here.

City Clerk Lester Brenzel said yesterday that he received word from Mayor John Nissen Saturday to carry out the resolution passed by a 6-4 vote at the meeting of the common council last week which will make public the names of families, single people widows, and widowers who receive direct aid from the city.

The list will contain 97 names. Except where only one person is being helped, the names will be those of heads of families. In one case, for example, there are three adults and seven children, a total of 10, on relief, but only the father's name will be printed.

Although only 97 names will be made public, the city is carrying a relief load of 226 adults and 116 children. For relief purposes, children are those of 12 years or under. The city paid out $2,296.62 in January to support its relief clients.

A storm of protests by telephone and in person was reported last week by Alderman Jules Meritis, chairman of the poor committee. He said that most of the people who raised objections to publishing the list are not relief clients.

Many of them said they would ask aldermen who approved the measure to reconsider. Under council rules only an alderman who voted for a resolution can request that a second vote be taken. Brenzel said yesterday that none of the six members of the council who backed the plan had indicated to him any change in the conviction that the list should be published.

Report Proceeds of $14 at School Dance

Kaukauna—Proceeds of $15 were taken in at the dance held by the high school junior class in the gymnasium Saturday night and will be used for decorations at the junior prom in April.

Two specialty acts were presented by students at the dance. A quartet made up of Robert Cooper, Robert Knox, Daniel Kobusen, and Richard Hoolihan sang "Shine On Harvest Moon." Mary Alice Flanagan entertained the crowd with a tap dance at intermission. A door prize was won by Jean La Borde.

Board Votes to Adopt Standard School Ring

Kaukauna—The school board has voted to adopt a standard ring for high school students and is examining designs and bids from different companies.

After making a selection, they will enter into a 5-year contract with a wholesaler and arrange to have the rings sold at two jewelry stores here.

Cage Jamboree Being Planned At School Gym

Six Games Will Feature Annual Event Wednesday Night

Kaukauna — Twelve basketball teams are grooming themselves for the parade of six games in which girls, boys, teachers, and several of the city's well-known business men will participate at the second annual high school Basketball Jamboree tomorrow night.

Superintendent James F. Cavanaugh, coach of the high school faculty team, said yesterday he was "going to get busy and see what kind of wind the boys have."

Asked what chances he thought his teachers held against the officials of the industrial basketball league, Cavanaugh said "We ought to take that bunch easily."

See Victory

There was no member of the opposing team present to challenge the statement, but reliable sources said yesterday that with such men as Greenwood, Goldin, and Oite, the officials were confident of victory. One of their team is said to have used the expression "wipe the floor" in describing the offense they planned against the high school faculty. This game is at 7:30.

Although the line-ups will be ready by game time, Coach Paul Little said yesterday that he is having some trouble in finding horses for the game of horseback basketball at 9 o'clock, the last event of the program.

In this fray, high school youths of the jockey type will be perched on top the shoulders of classmates of more stalwart dimensions. Coach Little said yesterday there are plenty of riders to be had, but few steeds. Three of them, Noie, McLaughlin, and McCormick have volunteered, however, to play horsey.

Plan Tail Center

Because the original House of David team has a center of unusual height, the group of high school basketball players who have adopted that name are going to double up on two of their players in the game with the Midgets.

William Bedat will make the first layer and Tom Bauer, sitting on Bedat's shoulders, the second. A monstrous pair of pants will be fitted over both of them, extending from the bottom boy's knees to the top boy's hips. When they tire, gangling Robert Landreman will play center.

The jamboree will open at 6:15 with a game between the St. Mary and Holy Cross grade school teams.

Pegler Finds Resentment Against His Tax Proposal

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Chicago, Ill.—According to my reckoning anyone who doesn't pay his share of the cost of running the country is a parasite, and if that is an ugly word it is no more ugly than the practice of exempting from the income tax millions of public employees whose earnings are well within the zone of eligibility.

I discovered great resentment among persons drawing salaries from city, county and state at the very suggestion that they should pay the federal income tax on exactly the same basis as other people earning that same amount.

One woman, a school teacher, points out that she has sometimes paid as much as 15 per cent of her gross wages into the pension fund and seems to think of this as a tax. The fact is, of course, that this is no tax, but an unusually sound system of providing against old age. A person in private employment, earning the same amount, might also pay 15 per cent into an endowment policy or annuity subject to greater risks, but the income tax law would not regard that as deductible.

Another teacher, drawing $1,450, has waited some years for stated increases in salary which have been defaulted, however, owing to the depression, and perhaps, in part, to the overloading of the public service with deserving politicians who pay no tax, either. This income of $1,450, if the teacher is unmarried and not the head of a household, would be subject to a small tax, both federal and state, if she were privately employed.

It is unfortunate that her salary did not improve according to her expectations during the years of the great panic, but there are many people in private employment whose wages have failed to advance, but are compelled to show down, nevertheless, with their share of the cost of citizenship.

Interpretation is Result of Case Not Involving Tax

The federal income tax specifically applies to all income from whatever source derived, and the exemptions which protects city, county and state employees in vast number is the remote result of a very fastidious interpretation of the United States constitution in cases which were not based on the income tax law at all. The decisions were given long before the income tax existed, and later were construed to exempt all members of the greatest aggregate payroll in the world, including thousands of big shot dead-heads who get from $5,000 to $25,000 a year.

Some individuals seem to have confused the case so it may be repeated that state, county and city employees are exempt from the federal income tax, that federal employees are exempt from the state tax, and that certain officials of state, county and city are exempt from both.

There are no tables which show how many salaries are exempt from either or both taxes or the amount of the loss in revenue to the federal and state governments through this exception. However, there is great interest in the situation if I may judge by the volume of my mail on this subject, and possibly one of those percentage bureaus which compile statistics on every conceivable subject will presently come up with approximate totals.

All Very Sensitive to Suggestion of Tax

School teachers, policemen and firemen seem especially sensitive to the proposal that they should pay the same dues to the government as other people who draw the same income. I see no reason for this indignation, however, even though I readily grant that the income tax return from their salaries would be comparatively small. The point is that the tax was designed to affect all income from whatever source within the brackets established by law. They have no more moral right to exemption than any other person earning the same wages, and it is a strange awe of the constitution which exempts them at a time when the constitution is being ripped.

BIKE STEALING PICKS UP

Houston—P. Officer A. O. Taylor of the bicycle department of the probation office says many persons here in desperate need of bicycles apparently are unable to buy them. His record for 1936: 1,097 bicycles stolen; 541 bicycles recovered; value of bicycles recovered $9,941.63.

Please Drive Carefully

ped to tatters to accommodate the impatience of the administration. The supreme court decisions which are held to establish this exemption to the great detriment of those who work in private but unprotected industry, also hold against taxation upon taxation. Yet the state income tax laws actively dismiss that phase of these decisions.

Federal Government has More Active Conscience

The states levy income tax on the money which is paid to the federal government as income tax. In other words, you pay the federal government a tax and then pay a tax on that to the state. The federal government, however, has a slightly more active conscience in the same circumstances and exempts the money paid as state income tax. There is an important inconsistency there.

The case is plain, an enormous class of parasites in the public service enjoy all the benefits of government, while claiming exemption from the cost. They may be, for the most part, conscientious workers giving good service, but that is debatable, and besides the point anyway.

However, everybody knows that they do include hundreds of thousands of stupid, lazy, incompetent loafers tucked away in public offices on the recommendation of local political leaders. This class are deadweight and it is little enough to ask that they pay an income tax the same proportion as the people who support them.

Finds It Helps to Publicize His Hobby

Kaukauna—Publicity can be a help to a man's hobby, Frank M. Charlesworth, city engineer, has decided after the publication last week of a story revealing him as a collector of pipes and tobacco cans. A woman approached him during the weekend and asked if he had a can of tobacco of a certain brand, little known. When Charlesworth said "No, that's one I've missed," the woman said her husband had an empty can at home which he could have.

Charlesworth arranges the tobacco containers on a book shelf above his desk and has 20 different brands and three countries represented.

KILL THAT COLD

Give It No Chance to Survive Thru the Use of Half-way Measures!

Treat a cold to kill it, not to coddle it!

Many a cold lightly treated turns into something worse.

Hit a cold "where it lives"—in the system! That means to take an internal treatment.

Hit it with a cold medicine, not with a preparation good for all kinds of ailments.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment you want.

First of all, it is a cold tablet, made expressly for colds.

Second, it is internal medication and of fourfold effect.

Here's what it does:

First, it opens the bowels, an advisable step in the treatment of a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital step.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

That's the fourfold treatment a cold calls for and in Bromo Quinine you get it in the form of a single tablet.

Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain.

The sugar-coated are exactly the same as the regular, except that the tablets are coated with sugar for palatability.

When you feel a cold coming on, don't "monkey around" with half-way measures.

Go right to your druggist for a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine tablets.

Start taking the tablets immediately, two every four hours. Used in time, Bromo Quinine will usually break up a cold in 24 hours and that's the speed you want.

Industrial First Aid Classes are Planned

Kaukauna—A class on industrial first aid has been added to the curriculum at the vocational school and it will meet weekly at 3:15 Friday afternoons in the first aid room of the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company.

Representatives from the Thilmany mill and from the Union Bag and Paper company met for the first time last Friday with the instructor, Leon Palmer, to organize the class and outline the course of study.

The work will extend over 10 weeks. After this class has finished its studies, Palmer, a circuit teacher, will organize groups for other courses along the same line.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. Don Anderson is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Forum Hears Address by Labor Head

LABOR and its problems was the subject of a talk by Carl Smith, president of the Trades and Labor council of Appleton, at a meeting of the Monday Evening Forum of First Congregational church last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Chouinard, 120 E. Franklin street.

Mr. Smith stated that there are 21 working men's unions in Appleton and added that the so-called labor question is the biggest question facing the American people today. Labor feels that there should be a more equitable distribution of income throughout the nation, he said, stating that capital has taken more money out of industry and used it for other purposes than was warranted.

Closed His Plant

Henry Ford has received great applause throughout the country for the fact that he pays good wages, said the speaker, and yet when he decided to change the model of his cars, he closed up his plant in Detroit and threw thousands of men out of work, forcing the city of Detroit to take a large percentage of them on relief.

Ford does not pay any taxes in the city of Detroit, Mr. Smith continued, but Ford finally donated $500,000 for such relief.

In speaking of the rights of capital and labor, he said that those in sympathy with labor claim that the employees of an industry have a human right in the resources of any industry. He said that the employees risk just as much as does the capitalist in almost any industry, for should the industry fail its employees are thrown out of jobs, with almost no chance of getting back any jobs they might have had formerly.

Better Distribution

A more equitable distribution of resources benefits more people and the money is usually spent in the community where it is earned. Mr. Smith continued. In speaking of the position that labor takes in the economic struggle, he gave a short history of the labor movement since its beginning in England and later in this country in Massachusetts among the shoe makers. He stated that free public schools were first started in Massachusetts and taught during the winter months by unemployed carpenters who taught their own and the neighbor's children the three R's which was about all they themselves knew.

Mr. Smith told of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor which was organized in 1902 and through whose efforts many beneficial laws have been secured in the state. These, he said, benefit all labor, not only those belonging to the unions. The federation, he stated, has been responsible for the Workmen's Compensation law, the 8-hour day, minimum wage law for women, has brought about the unemployment insurance law, the state radio system for police and has made it illegal for any industry to import strike breakers, which was formerly the custom.

The forum voted to donate $5 to the Red Cross flood relief fund. Fifteen members and three guests were present at the meeting.

Forum Hears Address by Labor Head

"LABOR and Its Problems" was the subject of a talk by Carl Smith, president of the Trades and Labor council of Appleton, at a meeting of the Monday Evening Forum of First Congregational church last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Chouinard, 120 E. Franklin street.

Mr. Smith stated that there are 21 working men's unions in Appleton, and added that the so-called labor question is the biggest question facing the American people today. Labor feels that there should be a more equitable distribution of income throughout the nation, he said, stating that capital has taken more money out of industry and used it for other purposes than was warranted.

Closed His Plant

Henry Ford has received great applause throughout the country for the fact that he pays good wages, said the speaker, and yet when he decided to change the model of his cars, he closed up his plant in Detroit and threw thousands of men out of work, forcing the city of Detroit to take a large percentage of them on relief. Mr. Ford does not pay any taxes in the city of Detroit, Mr. Smith continued, but Edsel Ford finally donated $50,000 for such relief.

In speaking of the rights of capital and labor, he said that those in sympathy with labor claim that the employees of an industry have a human right in the resources of any industry. He said that the employees risk just as much as does the capitalist in almost any industry, for should the industry fail its employees are thrown out of jobs, with almost no chance of getting back any jobs they might have had formerly.

Better Distribution

A more equitable distribution of resources benefits more people and the money is usually spent in the community where it is earned, Mr. Smith continued. In speaking of the position that labor takes in the economic struggle, he gave a short history of the labor movement since its beginning in England and later in this country in Massachusetts among the shoe makers. He stated that free public schools were first started in Massachusetts and taught during the winter months by unemployed carpenters who taught their own and the neighbor's children the three R's which was about all they themselves knew.

Mr. Smith told of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor which was organized in 1902 and through whose efforts many beneficial laws have been secured in the state. These, he said, benefit all labor, not only those belonging to the unions. The federation, he stated, has been responsible for the Workmen's Compensation law, the 8-hour day, minimum wage law for women, has brought about the unemployment insurance law, the state radio system for police and has made it illegal for any industry to import strike breakers, which was formerly the custom.

The forum voted to donate $5 to the Red Cross flood relief fund. Fifteen members and three guests were present at the meeting.

Here's the Modern Way To Help END a Cold

The 3 Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest, and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with a warm cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages of the nose, throat, and chest. This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation—eases the cough—helps break congestion.

During the night, VapoRub keeps right on working. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

English Lenten services will be held at 7:30 Wednesday evening at St. John Evangelical and Reformed church with the Rev. A. Guenther, pastor, preaching. The sermons will be held every Thursday night during Lent on the theme "A Creative Christian Faith." The title of this week's sermon will be "In Jesus." In addition to the mid-week Lenten sermons, Dr. Cox will begin a series of sermons at the morning service next Sunday on the theme, "The Meaning of the Cross." Next Sunday's sermon will be entitled "The Cross Revealing Sin." Sermon reviews of six vital books of 1936 will be given at 4:30 each Sunday afternoon during Lent also, the first one next Sunday to be on "The Return to God" by Link.

Each Thursday night during Lent, a potluck supper will be served at 6 o'clock at First Congregational church for members and their families. At 7 o'clock there will be education in sacred music and holy writ by the Rev. J. B. Hanna, pastor, and LaVahn K. Maesch. The subject will be "The Lost Manuscripts." Last Sunday morning the Rev. Mr. Hanna gave a sermon on "The Value of Prayer," bringing out the idea that prayer results in a steady growth in self-control and in an increase in appreciation of the good things of life.

Evening Service
The first English Lenten service of the season will be held at 7:45 Wednesday evening at Zion Lutheran church with a sermon by the Rev. Theodore Marth, pastor. German Lenten services will be held at 7:45 Thursday evening. This same schedule will be followed all during Lent at Zion. Last Sunday the pastor preached on "Behold—Jerusalem and Calvary!" A junior social gathering was held last evening for members of the confirmation classes of 1935 and 1936.

A communion service has been announced for the first Lenten service at Trinity English Lutheran church at 7:30 Wednesday evening. The Rev. D. E. Bossemann, pastor, will preach. Last Sunday his sermon was entitled "The Sabbath and the Lord's Day." At St. Paul Lutheran church there will be German Lenten services at 7:30 each Wednesday evening beginning this week and English services at the same time Thursday evenings. The Rev. F. M. Brandt will preach both sermons this week, on "Friend, Wherefore Art Thou Come?" but there will be guest preachers at some of the later services. Last Sunday Pastor Brnadt spoke on "Jesus Christ, Our High Priest." Announcements for English communion will be received at either personage Friday.

Sermon Topic
"Is it Nothing to You?" is the text of the first Lenten sermon to be given by the Rev. Philip A. C. Froehke, pastor of St. Matthew Lutheran church, at 7:45 Thursday evening at his church. Lenten services will be held every Thursday night at St. Matthew church. "The First Commandment" was the sermon subject at the morning service last Sunday. Ash Wednesday services at Emmanuel Evangelical church have been cancelled because of the funeral of the Rev. G. H. Blum's mother which is being held at Elroy in the afternoon.

"Spirit" was the subject of the lesson-sermon Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist. The following passage was taken from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Individuals are consistent who, watching and praying, can 'run' and not be weary; . . . walk, and not faint" who gain good rapidly and hold their position, or attain slowly and yield not to discouragement. God requires perfection, but not until the battle between spirit and flesh is fought and the victory won. . . . When we wait patiently on God and seek truth righteously, He directs our path."

The special mid-week Lenten service at Mt. Olive Lutheran church will be at 7:45 Wednesday evening. The Rev. R. E. Ziesemer, pastor, will preach on "Gethsemane." Last Sunday morning he preached on "Saving and Unsaving Sorrow for Sin." At First English Lutheran church there will be a Lenten service at 7:30 Wednesday evening.

The Girl Scout laws and promise were then read by the whole group, and were followed by the international prayer, read by Barbara Jennings.

Sees Possibility of Two Democratic Factions in Next Presidential Race

THE possibility that the two parties in the presidential campaign of 1940 might be two factions of the present Democratic party, a liberal Rooseveltian group and a conservative alliance, was suggested by Donald Du Shane, professor of government at Lawrence college, in a lecture Monday afternoon before the Appleton Womens club. Although he admitted that it was a long way ahead to make a prediction, he declared that the Republican party as we have known it seems to be through, unless the present government collapse during the next four years.

It was the second of two lectures which Prof. Du Shane presented for the club on the subject "An Unbiased Approach to the American Political Parties."
The Republicans, he said, bungled the last campaign, and although they still hold New England and the northern part of the middlewestern and western farmers, once staunch Republicans, have been on the Democratic side for the last five years. If the Democrats keep them on their side another three years, it will appear that the Republicans have permanently lost them, he asserted.

May Run Again
"Roosevelt may run again in 1940 if he sees it is the only way to continue his program," Du Shane went on, listing as possible successors, Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, and Governor George Earle of Pennsylvania. "But neither of these could appeal to the many different interest groups in the Democratic party as Roosevelt can. Wallace would concentrate his interest in agriculture and Earle would be concerned chiefly with the wealthy manufacturing interests."

The LaFollettes are also being mentioned in connection with the presidential campaign of 1940, but Prof. Du Shane said they would be more likely to run as Republicans than Democrats. Declaring that their activities were not as progressive as they made out, he compared what they had done for Wisconsin to what Coolidge had done for Massachusetts before he became president. Phil would have a better chance than Bob, he said, because he has not made as many enemies. A senator, he explained, is always a poorer bet for president than a governor because he has had to vote a definite no or yes to many questions about which there was wide difference of opinion.

Prof. Du Shane said he saw no possibility of a third party in 1940.
Outline Histories
Preceding this discussion of the possible future development of the political parties, he spoke of the nature of parties and outlined briefly their lineup in the past.

In answer to the question as to why there are parties, he said that probably the best answer was that a number of groups joined on an interest basis to get advantages which the government can give and to escape the costs of government. Politics in our country, he continued, has been the competition between varying groups to get the advantages and escape the costs.

Another question frequently asked, Prof. Du Shane said, is "Why are there liberals and conservatives in the same party?" The best explanation of that, he said, is that we do not really have two national parties at all, but only two leagues of local parties, with nothing to bind together men like Borah and Ogden Mills except that they agree on the same president every four years.

"It is really a multi-party system," he pointed out, "which collects itself into two camps every four years."
Lists Assets
Prof. Du Shane went on to list the assets which bosses, or party leaders, have when they go out after the vote. One is the indifferent voter, who cuts down the total, making smaller the number of votes a party has to control. Another asset, the club women were most of them surprised to learn, is woman suffrage, which doubled the machine vote. Prof. Du Shane maintained, because everyone who had an ax to grind brought his wife to the polls, and the others didn't care. The stand-pat vote, decided to the party by grandpa, as Mr. Du Shane put it, is another of the political leader's assets, because he is sure of it and it doesn't cost him anything.

The bandwagon vote, the tendency to vote for the winner, always seemed an asset, but it suffered a blow last fall in the Literary Digest poll, the speaker pointed out. Since the poll showed the Republican party winning, it scared many Roosevelt partisans, who would otherwise not have bothered to vote, to the polls, Prof. Du Shane remarked.

Doing favors, doling out help and mitigating the force of the law is a powerful asset of the political boss, and is becoming more potent, Du Shane declared, because we are acquiring more laws. There is also the use of emotional appeal, including a number of things from slogans to sunflowers.

Vote on Personalities
"We don't vote so much on issues as we vote on personalities," Prof. Du Shane said. "Probably it is our love for organized sports. We root for one side against the other—not rationally but as partisans."
Most of the reforms in the American system of government have come from a third party or a third party growing within one of the major parties, he asserted. The Australian ballot, woman suffrage, prohibition and the direct primary were all adopted by the major parties after they had been observed as good vote-getters for the third party.

To make persons more interested in politics, Prof. Du Shane suggested that the smaller government groups in the citizen's locality be given greater importance and transact more important business. He also advised that the governmental structure be simplified so that there would be only one chamber in the state legislature, making it easier for the people to watch what was going on.

In the matter of local government, he said it was easier to fix responsibility in the city manager system than it was when there was a mayor and council.
After his lecture some of the women brought up that much-discussed question of the day, "What about Roosevelt's suggestions for reorganization of the Supreme court?"

Prof. Du Shane's answer was "Roosevelt wants social responsibility and government tied together. He believes federal action is necessary. Since he has made up his mind to do it, we ought to be glad that he is doing it in the least objectionable way. An amendment would probably make the government all-powerful. Changing the court temporarily seems the better way."

Mrs. James Wagg president of the Appleton Womens club, announced that the next Monday afternoon lecture would be given March 1, at which time Dr. Charles D. Flory, assistant professor of education and psychology at Lawrence college, would be the speaker.

Wings for Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

Chapter 49

UNDER THE MAGNOLIAS

As if by common agreement Philip and Sally took the garden path to the little clearing under the magnolias. The grass was deep and the unclipped hedges brushed their hands and faces.

"This place is a wilderness," said Philip. "I'm always forgetting to have the grass cut."

With a little sigh of contentment, Sally found the wicker chair under the biggest tree and sank into it. Philip sat down on the grass. The smell of the yellow jasmine was overpoweringly sweet. A little wind rustled the still leaves of the magnolias.

"When I sit here with you like this," confessed Philip, "what I have to say doesn't sound important enough to talk about." He stirred restlessly. "Yet—we do have some things to explain to each other."

Sally would have stopped him if she could. She did not want to know what he was about to tell her. She guessed that he had loved Mary and lost her. He wanted to let her pride stand in the way of that. If she could not have Philip's love, then his friendship was a thing to be grateful for. Only if he did not speak and put the words between them, for this one time she could pretend that he was lover instead of friend.

"You're still going away?" he asked after a time.

"Day after tomorrow," she told him, wondering how she could be so calm. He had on'y to say he wanted her to stay and nothing could drive her away, from Warren-ton.

"I didn't know, until today that you were taking another position," said Philip. "I took it for granted that you meant you were going away to be married."

"I'm going to be married," Sally said straight with astonishment. "Whatever gave you that idea?"

"Some time ago Mary told me when you were staying at her house that you and Bob had fallen in love with each other."

"But—surely—you—you couldn't have believed that!"

"I was a fool to believe it," said Philip soberly. "But you seemed to be out with him a great deal—I felt that he was nearer your own age—that he had a great deal to offer you—and that I had no business trying to make you—care for me."

"That was stupid," cried Sally. "Surely we were good enough friends—you could have talked to me about it." Tears of anger and relief came to Sally's eyes and she did not try to stop them.

"I Was A Stupid Fool!"

"We were good friends," said Philip. "But when a man is in love, he ceases to be a friend. He loses the reasonableness he had in a friendship."

"But Mary said you and she had an understanding—" Sally went on miserably.

"So we did," admitted Philip. "An understanding that I was not to allow the blackmail story to get to the newspaper. An understanding that she was not to come to my house again, alone, at night—"

"But she did come! I saw her!"

"Yes, she did come, after she had promised not to," said Philip. "Mary imagined herself in love with me, but she never was. It was just a sort of infatuation born of boredom. Afterwards, she stuck to it because her father objected so strongly. The last time, when she came to the house that night, she was simply hysterical with the excitement of the trial and her father's illness."

"But you were in love with her," said Sally uncertainly. "You went out with her. You stopped letting me share the work with you—never called me into your office." All the hurt she had suffered for the weeks past came out now. "That night you found me at the lodge, you were angry. You scarcely said a word."

"I was wrong. I was a stupid fool," said Philip. "I shut you out of the McDonald case because your father asked me to. I didn't want you to get mixed up in it any further. I knew I'd been wrong to let you get in as deep as I had."

"But there was more than that," Sally urged. "You were—almost like a stranger."

"I was admitted Philip. "I thought you had fallen in love with young Dawes. I tried to tell myself you were easily consoled. I was angry with you. I was angry with myself for caring for you so much. I could scarcely keep my mind on the job. Besides, I had the McDonald case on my hands not to mention Mary and my own affairs, which were going bad. I knew I might lose this house and the paper."

"But why wouldn't you talk to me?"

"I did once. When I told you I loved you, you begged me to stop. I saw then that you thought of me as a friend as a sort of elderly comforter in time of trouble."

"That was a long time ago," said Sally in a low voice.

The night I found you at the lodge, Philip went on, "I was half crazy for fear of what had happened to you. I was angry with you for getting yourself mixed up with Benton and his gang and running into danger. But when I found you—all that was allowed to blot out just loving you. I didn't mean to take you in my arms."

"But you did. Why did you let me go then?" cried Sally. "Why did you—if you loved me?"

"If I loved you, my darling!" Philip cried, drawing her into his arms. "I wanted you to have your chance to get away from me—because I loved you."

"What a funny thing to want—if you love someone," said Sally tremulously. The words were lost on Philip. He kissed her lips, her cheeks, her hair.

The Magic of the Garden

"Tell me you love me, Sally," he insisted. "I want to hear you say it. Say it enough times to blot out all those fine speeches you made during the trial."

Salary Ordinance For 1937 Passed By City Council

No Changes Made in Schedule for Next Year

Menasha — An ordinance fixing the salaries of the officers and employees of the city of Menasha for the year beginning May 1, 1937, was passed by members of the common council at an adjourned meeting held at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon in city hall. No changes were made in the various salaries.

Aldermen met with T. D. Spalding, A. Meier and Earl Hill of the water and light commission before going into session to discuss the commission's right to employ their own attorney in the event another city attorney is elected in the spring.

Members of the commission contended that a utility lawyer should be associated with that type of work for a longer period than two years, the length of a city attorney's term, to become familiar with utility law. At present the commission pays $540 of the city attorney's salary for his services. The commission will reserve the right to appoint its own lawyer at the termination of the present city attorney's term. The attorney's salary will remain at $1,140 until a change is made, it was decided.

List Salaries

Salaries fixed for the new year are as follows: mayor, $475; 10 aldermen, $170 each; city clerk, $2,475; city treasurer, $2,100; bookkeeper, $1,200; city attorney, $1,140; superintendent of streets, $1,920; sealer of weights and measures, $240; city engineer including helpers, $2,100; health officer, $1,200; city physician, $1,200, all salaries paid by the year.

Mill street bridge tenders will receive $50 per month, shall work eight hours per day in three shifts and during the months which navigation is open. Three bridge tenders are hired by the city. Two assessors will receive $5 each per day and $5 per day will be paid to one member of the board of review. Such members of the board of review shall be in session six days with pay starting on the first Monday in July.

Branch Library Problem Discussed at Meet of Roosevelt School P. T. A.

Neenah—"Is the branch library to be for children only? Have you a place to house such a library? What type of books do you want: books for supplementary reading, for recreational reading or for both?" asked Miss Mae Hart, Neenah librarian who spoke to the Roosevelt Parent-Teachers association at the school Monday afternoon in conjunction with a discussion on the advisability and possibility of a branch library.

"If a branch library is to be maintained, our buying program would have to be revised," said Miss Hart. "Our budget for children's books this year is $700, the amount to include purchasing of new books, replacements and duplicates."

"A school library service is invaluable in a school program and for any library to serve best the needs of the teacher and pupil, it must be aware of those needs. The value of a library cannot be accurately measured. Libraries not only are used for recreational purposes but are used to supplement other readings and for research purposes."

Must Meet Needs

"Library workers must ask themselves, are we giving reading material to meet the changing social conditions? Are we providing recreational reading? Are we imparting to suggest books we should buy? Do teachers ask for help? Do librarians, to be helpful, study young people's interests?"

"If a branch library is established, would it segregate a large number of books and inconvenience the larger group of patrons? According to the American library association standards, two books should be available for each child through the eighth grade. We would have to determine the hours which the library would be open."

"At present, we permit teachers to borrow groups of books to circulate among the students. The books are loaned for a period of six weeks or longer. We must choose those books necessary to project study with a knowledge of the student reading ability and interest. We are willing to cooperate in every way possible and we would be glad to bring your suggestions to the attention of the board."

May Raise Fund

In the open discussion which followed, it was suggested that the association raise money to provide books if a branch library were established since the budget figure for children's books would be inadequate. One association member stated that she believed if such a library were put into the Roosevelt school, contributions would be given to increase the number of books. The McKinley school, it was pointed out, has had a branch library for about four years and the plan has worked very satisfactorily. The McKinley school library also permits adults to draw books.

"We are becoming more and more conscious that here on the island, we are a unit in ourselves. We must work together for ourselves. A branch library would mean a great deal to the school and would undoubtedly increase the circulation of children's books" was the opinion of another member of the group.

See Decrease in Number of Cases Of Athlete's Foot

Nurse Reports Success of Drive on Disease in Schools

Neenah—A big decrease in the number of cases of athlete's foot was noted during a recent foot examination of the girls in Neenah Public schools, according to Florence Oberreich, girl's director of physical education. The few remaining cases are a result of negligence in treatment by the pupils since the fall examination, the instructor said.

Preventative solutions are provided wherever showers are taken and the pupils step into them before and after a shower. Precautions are being taken in all schools by use of the solution and periodic examinations to stamp out this infection, she continued.

Give Summary

Following is a summary of the disease issued by Florence Koepsel Oberreich:

"This skin infection, Epidermophytosis, commonly called 'Athlete's Foot,' is on the feet and between the toes and is extremely infectious. People should always dry their feet carefully after bathing. People also have the impression this infection is confined only to the feet; it is not. It may spread or may occur any place on the body. The germ lurks in many places where people go for health-recreation and cleanliness. This germ thrives in dressing rooms of clubs—showers, bath mats, etc.

Fungus infection and is often mistaken for various forms of eczema. In its early stages it manifests itself in several different ways, usually by an itching sensation between the toes, on the soles of the feet and tops of the toes; fine rash with small pimples or tiny blisters that break and exude a yellowish fluid. The skin turns white and scales form between the toes; skin may peel leaving sore spots unprotected. This skin condition may spread to the ankles or up the legs and other parts of the body and is therefore, often attributed by sufferers to a form of eczema.

"It is best to go to the family doctor as soon as the infection is known to the individual. Ankleitis should be worn to bed so as not to spread the germ. To prevent reinfection, the stockings should be boiled and the shoes disinfected. The infection probably occurs more often on the feet due to their frequent contacts with questionable places."

A STRETCH of liquid is injected into a small rubber center about the size of an overgrown marble. The liquid, which expands when warm, gives a golf ball life.

HALF SHELLS molded from a composition of Brazilian balata, pitch and latex encase the banded ball and are vulcanized under high pressure and heat. Molds imprint the surface grids.

PAINT sprays from hooded guns as the big wheel revolves the twirling fingers—three coats are "baked" 18 hours each at 30 to 100 degrees.

DIMPLES are painted on in various colors with trademark and "tourname" numbers, which help identify otherwise identical balls.

PENULTIMATE has ahead for the finished product. Golf balls are subjected to tests for durability and distance.

Heavyweight Go Still in Whirl; Papers Unsigned

Chicago Park Board Expected to Come Down On Soldier Field Price

BY EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO.—Close-ups and long shots of the heavyweight title bout which Merry-go-round... Reports were current today that Champion James J. Braddock and Challenger, Joe Louis will get together next Saturday to sign articles for a 15-round bout June 15 at Soldier Field.

But a skeptical hotel chef who had one lavishly planned luncheon fizzle out on him swears he's going to wait until he sees Braddock and Louis in person before he'll prepare another... Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission, will meet tomorrow with the mayor's central celebration committee, which hopes to make a heavyweight bout the big attraction on the city's charter jubilee program next summer.

Indicating there is little to reports that some Chicago citizens look with disfavor on the prospect of a bout in which Mike Jacobs of New York would be co-promoter with the Illinois Sporting Club... The Chicago park board, which controls Soldier Field, met today to consider the request of Sheldon Clark, who offered Braddock $500,000 to meet Louis, for a conference on rental terms... The customary fee is 15 per cent of the gate, but a concession is likely in view of the ultimatum—"no Soldier field, no fight".

You pay your money and you take your choice... Chicago paper insists articles already have been signed and that any meeting between the principals will be for the benefit of cameramen... And says that the match will be June 22 at Comiskey park, home of the White Sox, which seats 75,000 compared with the 130,000 capacity of Soldier Field.

Six Norbert College Boxers Will Show in Bout At Green Bay

West De Pere.—St. Norbert college has entered a team of six boxers in the Green Bay Press-Gazette Golden Glove tournament to be held Feb. 11, 12 and 13, according to an announcement made by the Rev. T. G. Fox, O. Praem, director of athletics.

The team, which will fight in the regular division, consists of Al Scarlatia, 118 pounds; Lauron Chesley, 126 pounds; Savor Canadeo, 135 pounds; Johnny Anderson, 147 pounds; Al Ulrich, 160 pounds; and Tom Kenneally, heavyweight. All of them have had previous Golden Glove experience, Chesley having won the 126-pound novice title at Green Bay last year, while the other five fought on the CYO team in the 1935 Chicago tourney.

Canadeo, who defeated Tommy Pallatin, National A. A. U. lightweight champ last summer, is considered by Coach Johnny Walsh of the University of Wisconsin boxers as one of the best amateurs of his weight in the country.

The entire squad, in the absence of intercollegiate competition, has been appearing on amateur cards in Northeastern Wisconsin the past season.

ADISON.—The University of Wisconsin basketball team carried a second half rally into an overtime period last night to defeat Ohio State, 35 to 33, while about 6,000 excited spectators put on the loudest demonstration heard in the field house this season.

Bursts of shouting arose from the stands through five hectic minutes of play required to break a 30 to 30 tie at the end of the regulation game. The Badgers trailed 13 to 9 at the half, advanced to a seven point lead twice in the second period, and then led James Hull, forward, the score on a neat follow-in shot after he missed a free throw.

Gordon Fuller, forward, made his fifth free throw in eight attempts to begin the overtime scoring. Hull retaliated with a field goal, but George Rooney, forward, put Wisconsin ahead again, 33 to 32, with a spectacular long shot.

John Raudebaugh, guard, made a free throw on Fuller's foul and a crowd roared as red lights flashed the score, 33 to 33.

Byron Bell, slender sophomore center, who had failed to score up to that point, took a long pass and popped the ball neatly through the net. That ended the scoring, but only because the Buckeyes were in a shooting slump and missed nearly a dozen shots. The timer's gun sounded as Fuller missed a free throw.

The victory was Wisconsin's second in six conference games and it evened a 28 to 22 defeat suffered at Columbus. Lee Mitchell, Badger guard, Fuller and Hull tied for scoring honors with seven points each.

Wisconsin will play another home game Saturday against Minnesota, a team that beat the Buckeyes 31 to 27.

The match will be five games, regardless of the number of games either team wins. For Appleton, the spikers will be Captain Eugene Mullin, Carl Koltzke, Percy Menning, Carleton Feurst, Rev. A. M. Schendel, and setup men Robert Heiss, Robert Potter, Dr. Carlson, Bert Norling, Frank Hammer and Fred Buss.

On Friday night of this week the strong Sun Light Daughters of Oshkosh will meet the Y team at 8 o'clock.

Putnam Refuses To Approve Bill From Melchior

City Attorney Claims Work Of 'Prosecutor' Isn't Finished

New London—At a meeting of the common council last night City Attorney Giles H. Putnam returned a bill for $1160, which was submitted for his approval by Melchior for services rendered in the prosecution of the "gambling cases" Feb. 3. The services of Attorney Melchior were described as "prosecution of criminal cases." Melchior was appointed on request of Chief of Police Harry Macklin.

Putnam disapproved payment of the bill at this time he said, because the job for which Melchior was appointed has not been completed. Two of the defendants, including Putnam, have appealed the case to the circuit court of Waupaca and in Putnam's words, "until these appeals are fully disposed of Mr. Melchior's connection with the case is not terminated."

"Prosecute All"

The city attorney also charged that Melchior was appointed to prosecute all violators of the so-called gambling ordinance and in the two weeks since, there has been no action taken against a group found in the Mike Schwartz tavern as a result of the same raid.

Said Putnam, "Two different groups of persons were involved in the raids and the Chief of Police was of the opinion that I as city attorney should prosecute the group that was found playing cards at the Mike Schwartz saloon."

Sees No Violation

"I refused to do so, believing at the time that there was no violation of the city ordinance as to the actual players and I am more than ever convinced that under the ordinance as it now stands that no conviction can ever be secured for violation under section 3 of ordinance 4 for card playing. I have been reliably informed that since the trial of one group on Feb. 3 that the Chief of Police has sought to have the other group detected at the Schwartz tavern arrested under the state statute instead of under the ordinance. It is very evident from his acts that he must be new to the position that he hopes to successfully prosecute this group under the ordinance, otherwise he would not have sought the aid of the state law."

They Have No Case

"They must admit if they do not prosecute under the ordinance that they have no case, and if they have no case against the Schwartz group, they will have to admit that they had no case against the other group. Until the chief of police and Mr. Melchior see fit to prosecute all offenders and each person concerned or file a statement with me, that they do not intend to prosecute the group found playing cards at the Schwartz tavern, do I feel that Mr. Melchior is entitled to his pay for his services, for his services are not completed."

"But I do insist at this time that there be no discrimination made and if there is any reason why the Schwartz group should not be prosecuted, the public of the city of New London is entitled to know it."

Binding Resolution

Supplementary resolutions were adopted by the council to record the many detailed technicalities involved in the $220,000 refunding bond issue. The bonds will be sold by Monday Feb. 15, at which time all outstanding city notes will be redeemed at the office of L. M. Wright, city treasurer.

The city clerk, Mrs. J. C. Freeman, was instructed last night to notify a second time all note holders who have not filed their notes for payment by the latter part of this week. Legal notice has been given that interest on the notes ceases on Feb. 15, whether they are redeemed or not.

Read Communication

A communication from Henry Hoffman, Shuon street, in support of the work of R. B. Rasmussen toward flood control north of the city, was read and referred to the committee on the flood water control. The committee, composed of John V. chairman, A. R. Mayhew and Carl Lindner, reported that preliminary investigation proved the problem too complicated and advised consultation with the state highway commission and the services of an engineer.

Charles Bonnin, 29, New London, and Louis Block, 48, Black Creek, were granted operators' licenses for taverns in this city.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth tells how Senators choose a light smoke... considerate of their throats

"I often lunch in the Senate restaurant at the Capitol. Nearly every Senator and Representative there smokes, and the number I see take out a package of Luckies is quite surprising. Perhaps surprising is not the word. Because off and on, ever since 1917, I myself have used Luckies for this sound reason: They really are a light smoke—kind to the throat. It's simply common sense that these Senators and Representatives, whose voices must meet the continuous strain of public speaking, should also need a cigarette that is considerate of their throats... a light smoke."

Alice Roosevelt Longworth

THE FINEST TOBACCOS—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

In a recent independent survey, an overwhelming majority of lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc., who said they smoked cigarettes, expressed their personal preference for a light smoke.

Mrs. Longworth's statement verifies the wisdom of this preference and so do leading artists of radio, stage, screen and opera, whose voices are their fortunes, and who choose Luckies, a light smoke. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on your throat.
